Cabinet Crisis Widens

CP from AP-Reuters

BUENOS AIRES—The shaky government of Argentine President Jose Maria Guido, buffeted by army chiefs and an inflation-ridden economy, faced a cabinet crisis Monday night.

Two ministers submitted their resignations and others were reported ready to follow.

UNDER FIRE

Interior Minister Carlos A. Adrogue, under fire from Argentina's 80 political parties for his part in a recent decree forbidding supporters of former dictator Juan Peron, Communists and other extremists to run for office, twice put in his resignation.

Guido twice refused to accept it.

NOT DECIDED

Shortly afterward, Defense Minister Jose Luis Castillo, criticized for his handling of the army crisis, offered his resignation for the second time in three days.

Guido said he had not decided whether to accept it.

Adams Run 'Terrible' Brings Ban

VANCOUVER (CP)—An fishing in the Fraser River and approaches has been banned this week following reports of a poor exchange salmon run on the Adams River northeast of Kamloops.

Lloyd Royal, director of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, said Monday catches so far have been "terrible."

Mr. Royal last year warned that biological studies indicated the Adams River run would fall to "practically zero."

A low rate of ocean survival made it doubtful that enough fish would return for spawning purposes.

Spacemen Landing Today?

CP from AP-Reuters

MOSCOW—Russia's two newest astronauts woke once again in space early today while their twin ships raced around the earth, constantly setting new mileage and orbital records, Tass news agency reported.

The bulletin reporting the position of the cosmonauts at 8 a.m. Moscow time said they were then over the southern hemisphere, Vosok III in its fifth revolution and Vosok IV in its 21st.

Unconfirmed reports said "the Falcon" or "the Golden Eagle," or both, might land during the day.

A Soviet informant told The Associated Press something interesting would happen in the afternoon (Moscow time is ten hours ahead of Pacific Daylight Time), but he refused to elaborate. About that time, both astronauts might be in position to descend.

"The Falcon," Maj. Andrian Nikolayev, 32, after his 45th orbit at 6 a.m. Moscow time, had flown about 1,150,000 miles since his Vosok III blasted off 66½ hours before, on Saturday morning.

AFTER 48 HOURS

"The Golden Eagle" code name for Lt.-Col. Pavel Popovich, 31, after his 20th orbit of the earth had traveled a total of about 775,000 miles since his Vosok IV was launched Sunday, 43 hours before.

Both had far outstripped the best previous Soviet space efforts and had covered distances far beyond those to the moon.

Neither cosmonaut has reported any discomfort from the peculiar condition of weightlessness encountered on all space flights. Maj. Gherman Titov, whose 17-orbital flight a year ago has now been exceeded, complained at times of a sort of sea-sickness during weightlessness.

Television pictures from the interior of their space ships were relayed from time to time to the Soviet TV network. Both lay back in their seats. Occasionally they would rise to a half-sitting position to work better on their log books. But they made only limited movements.

RISES FROM SEAT

Tass said Popovich rose from his seat, looked through the porthole, smiled, drank something and then sat back down. Western TV watchers said he did not appear to leave his seat but leaned forward and looked through the porthole.

Along with millions of Russians, Premier Khrushchev followed the news of their progress closely in his Black Sea vacation retreat. Tass said he frequently telephoned the control centre in the interior asking for news and information on the astronauts' physical condition. After getting one report, Khrushchev massaged:

"EMBRACE YOU"

"I again congratulate you and embrace you. I wish you successful fulfillment on the program of the flight, and happy landing."

"I'll spare no effort to fulfil the set task," said Popovich. "I wish to be healthy and unharmed."

Cosmonaut Pavel Popovich here is shown relaxing with wife Maria and daughter Natasha, 6. Maria is scientist, holds civilian pilot's licence, and has flown more hours than famous husband—that is, previous to his space shot.—(AP Photofax.)

Orbiting Cosmonauts Eat 'Food for Gods'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and fellow cosmonaut Lt.-Col. Pavel Popovich ended another day in orbit with a banquet described as "food for the gods."

The menu included cutlets, roast veal, chicken fillets, pies and sandwiches with different stuffing and spreads catering to their personal tastes.

The cosmonauts also ate fruit, drank coffee, water and fruit juices.

And they also snacked on special food in tubes similar to those used by U.S. astronauts on their orbital flights.

Special dishes for the astronauts are prepared in small pieces, to be tossed into the mouth whole.

Both to Land In One Ship?

MANCHESTER, England

(Reuters)—Leading British astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell said Monday he would not be surprised if the two Russian cosmonauts now circling the earth came down in one craft and left the other one in orbit.

"The whole episode has been so spectacular that either the spacemen are both together or are extremely close to each other," he said.

CP Income Cut Sharply

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian Pacific Railway Company reported Monday net income in the first half of 1962 dropped to $6,571,263 from $11,300,366 in the first six months of 1961.

Black Watch Faces Red Bomber Goes Scot-Free

STIRLING, Scotland (Reuters)—Faces were red Monday in The Black Watch, the crack Scottish regiment.

Someone from a rival army unit threw a false bomb into their headquarters at Stirling castle here — and escaped scot-free.

Army cook Johnny Hardcastle, 34, was given the task as a test of "initiative" by a unit of the Royal Engineers based in Marshwood, Southern England.

Dressed as a tourist, Hardcastle hitch-hiked to the castle. Speaking with a foreign accent, he asked the guard about a man the newspapers said intended to put a bomb in the castle.

Hardcastle added: "The guard answered me in a broad Scots accent: 'He may go in, but he'll no get out.'"

The cook then got into the castle and "I chucked the bomb with a little note through the window of the commanding officer's office. Then I walked out . . ."

He left undetected.

Berliners Besiege Red Wall

BERLIN (Reuters)—Thousands of West Berliners defied pleas to stay away from the Berlin border wall Monday night to demonstrate on the first anniversary of the Communist-built barrier.

Two tear gas battles erupted between East and West German police and angry West Berlin crowds attacked three Soviet vehicles with stones and beer bottles.

AT CROSSING POINTS

Most of the demonstrations centred around the Bernauerstrasse and Friedrichstrasse border crossing points.

Truncheon-wielding West German police finally resorted to using tear gas on West German demonstrators who would not disperse near Bernauerstrasse.

At one point, an estimated 4,000 demonstrators shouted hostile slogans at East Berlin guards at checkpoint Charlie, the Friedrichstrasse point.

VEHICLES STONED

Angry crowds stoned a Soviet bus carrying soldiers to the Soviet War Memorial in the British sector and two limousines carrying Soviet officers.

Two unidentified explosions from East Berlin were heard at checkpoint Charlie.

West Berlin police earlier had prevented a column of about 1,000 marchers from joining with a similar number at the Bernauerstrasse point.

New Guinea Truce Set

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Indonesia and The Netherlands agreed Monday night on a cease-fire in West New Guinea, effective Wednesday when they sign a formal agreement that shifts the disputed territory from Dutch to United Nations and then to Indonesian administration.

Tories Thin Grouse

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan went grouse-shooting on the Yorkshire moors Monday as one of a party of seven guns which bagged 196 birds.

But Foreign Secretary Lord Home did better. His party of six guns, on the Home estate in Scotland, bagged a total of 268.

Both the prime minister and Home were among hundreds of shooting enthusiasts out on the moors Monday, the first day of the British grouse season, known as "the glorious twelfth." The twelfth was one day late this year, because the traditional opening date fell on a Sunday, when shooting is frowned upon.

35-Hour Work Week Target of U.S. Labor

CHICAGO (AP)—U.S. labor made the 35-hour work week, without a reduction in take-home pay, its big gun Monday in a drive against unemployment.

The executive council of the AFL-CIO endorsed a double-barreled attack, in Congress and at the bargaining table, to win full employment.

It traced aside the pleas of President Kennedy and his business and labor allies who have said that the United States cannot stand a cut in effort or a sharp boost in labor costs in its competition with the Communist world.

President George Meany revealed that the principal wedge to spread employment will be a drive to incorporate double-time pay for hours worked in excess of 35 a week, a radical shift from the present standard of time-and-a-half for more than 40 hours' work.

Great Precision of Space Shots Step to Moon

WASHINGTON (AP)—The apparently great accuracy of Russia's two manned space shots last weekend indicates the Soviet Union has cleared a major hurdle on the route to a rendezvous — in a space technique which could be used in flight to the moon.

This was the appraisal of American space scientists Monday in the wake of Russia's feat of launching two separate capsules—about a day apart—and having them wind up close enough together that the two cosmonauts, according to the Russians, can see each other's spacecraft.

"I think that they have done most of the hard things toward accomplishing an actual rendezvous in space (at some future time)," a space agency expert told a reporter.

"Getting two capsules up in a couple of days in such a way that the two vehicles are reported in sight of one another is about the biggest part of any plan to have a couple of vehicles 'rendezvous' or connect up with each other in space."

"For one thing, the timing of the launching of the second vehicle has to be very precise—and accomplished within a very limited time—because if the second vehicle were launched at the wrong time, the two vehicles could be in orbit on opposite sides of the earth from one another."

He indicated, too, that the guidance of the two vehicles, to get them in orbits relatively close to one another must also have been mastery.

Though launched about a day apart, the two space capsules are orbiting the earth in such a way that the difference in timing for a complete orbit of the planet is only one second. That is, one of the capsules takes 88 minutes and four seconds to whirl around the earth; the other requires only 86 minutes and three seconds.

The latter requires a shorter time because its orbit is "tighter" with respect to the earth—that is, somewhat closer. Moreover, while each of the capsules is travelling at a speed in excess of 17,000 miles an hour—the speed required to overcome the earth's gravitational pull—the capsule orbiting closer to the earth would have needed a somewhat higher speed than its side-kick when thrust into orbit. This is because of the stronger pull of the earth's gravity for a vehicle closer to the earth.

How would connecting two separate vehicles in space be accomplished?

In effect, it would be roughly analogous to a jet fighter travelling at 500 miles an hour manoeuvring close to a big tanker plane for refuelling, though with considerably greater manoeuvring.

Say the spacecraft orbiting closest to the earth wants to hook up with the one orbiting farther out.

The cosmonaut aboard the closer-in or No. 1 craft fires a rocket in such a way that his craft is pushed away from the earth and toward the orbit of the sister craft, No. 2.

When the orbital path of the latter is reached, the pilot of the No. 1 craft fires a second rocket—with the direction of thrust so arranged that the No. 1 craft heads in the same direction as the other craft. If this second rocket were not fired, the No. 1 craft would soar away in an entirely different direction.

Now, the two craft would be travelling at the same altitude, in the same general direction, and in the same type of orbit. However, they might not be in the same plane—that is, one orbit might be tipped at a greater angle than the other.

To overcome this, cosmonauts in either craft—or both—could fire additional rockets to bring the two craft together.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

I am writing this column at our summer cabin in Nova Scotia, once again a thousand miles removed from my home "in the States."

Aside from the serene beauty of the countryside, Nova Scotia has something else that wins my heart year after year—its people. They're pure, upright, simple, honest—you have to use these trite Biblical adjectives to describe them.

Of course they're nice to American tourists or "summer people," but that's only a small part of it. Most of their astonishingly pleasant behavior comes simply from the way they're made.

If you try to buy an item in a store here and they don't have it, they'll fall all over themselves directing you to a competitor who might be able to help you.

If you ask for directions, they'll spend extraordinary amounts of time and effort in making sure you'll get there. More often than not they'll draw you a map so you can't possibly go wrong.

Out of Their Way

If they have to give you change for your American dollars (this year the Canadian dollar is some 7½ cents below ours), they'll go out of their way to accommodate you, usually rounding up the sum in your favor.

Once, last year, I had a flat tire on a lonely stretch of highway. I stopped and jacked up my car. Then the spring of my jack snapped and I stood there, completely helpless, in pouring rain.

But this was Nova Scotia, and I wasn't helpless for long. Literally every car I flagged stopped. Eventually three drivers got out into the rain, conferred with each other and solved the problem by a makeshift arrangement of their jacks.

Speaking of car trouble, there was the inexplicable noise that seemed to come from the rear wheel of my car a week or so ago. I went into a garage (where I wasn't known) and the mechanic promptly diagnosed the trouble as a loose tailpipe. He jacked up my car, crawled under it, asked his helper to bring him a coathanger and after five minutes of awkward work, lying flat on his back, he'd stopped the noise for good.

'Glad to Do Thing'

I asked how much I owed him. He answered, "I'd be ashamed to take money for this."

Then again, there was the man-in-the-railway freight shed who helped me lift two heavy bedsprings into my station wagon, then shoved a large desk onto the luggage rack, ran off to get some rope, roped it carefully and securely, and then disappeared into the freight shed. I went after him and gave him a tip. He handed it back to me and said,

"Oh no. We're glad to do things like that."

Then there was the storekeeper who went out of his way supplying a missing part of an appliance I'd bought even though I hadn't noticed it was missing.

And the doctor who once gave first aid to one of our children without charge.

And all the other extremely nice, extraordinarily helpful, superlatively friendly people this country is full of.

Thank you, Nova Scotians!

Guilty of Knife Attack, Man Found Mentally Ill

An elderly man charged with a knife attack on a boarding house neighbor has been found mentally ill by a psychiatrist.

Magistrate William Ostler said in police court yesterday a psychiatric report indicated that Mah Kwak Chun, 53½

Flagard, should be committed for custodial treatment in a mental institution.

The charge of assault with actual bodily harm was laid Aug. 6 after Mah Quan of the same address told police the accused slashed him on the head, arm and hand with a 10-inch butcher knife.

After pleading guilty to the charge, the accused was remanded for a probation and psychiatric report.

Prosecutor Angus Smith said he would apply to the attorney-general for an order for commitment and Chun was remanded to Wednesday.

Your Good Health

Poly-Unsaturated or Animal, Fats Need Bile for Digestion

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I had my gall bladder removed a few years ago and was told not to eat any fats or fried foods. However, I would like to know if the new poly-unsaturated fats would have the same detrimental effects?—M. C.

Removal of the gall bladder takes away a reservoir in which we store an extra supply of bile—a digestive juice from the liver. With the gall bladder absent, we still get bile from the liver, but we can't save a reserve supply for use in some special moment of need.

Bile is especially necessary for digesting fats. Some of us eat normally whether the gall bladder is still there or has been removed.

Others, after gall bladder removal, may find it more comfortable to eat less fat and to avoid fried foods.

"Animal fats" and "poly-unsaturated fats" both are fats. Bile aids the digestion of either.

The scientific suspicion is that animal fats in excess quantities may be detrimental.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that if a girl doesn't have the three-day measles in childhood, there is greater danger of deformity in her children later on—in other words, does having three-day measles give some sort of immunity? I'm confused.—M. H.

Having three-day measles (also known as German measles, or rubella) in the first three months of pregnancy does increase the risk of various deformities in the baby.

Having three-day measles in childhood does help to prevent deformity; it gives immunity against having the disease in pregnancy. Since basically it is a mild disease otherwise, some people expose young girls to three-day measles deliberately.

Local Lass Champ Wins Gaelic Mod

A 13-year-old lass from Victoria topped the 16-and-under category last week in Highland dancing at Nova Scotia's important Gaelic Mod competition.

Gloria Smith won the highest aggregate points in the age division to make it a double triumph for Victoria at the Maritimes dancing festival.

ANGUS WON, TOO

It was previously reported that Angus MacKenzie, 16, of Victoria won the open dancing championship trophy for best male dancer at the Mod.

Gloria won a first, a second and a third in individual contests, and her four-person reel group won a first.

VISITING TEACHER

The pair now are visiting Mrs. Heather Duncan Jolley, formerly their dance teacher in Victoria, at her new home in Ottawa, following the end of sessions of the Gaelic College at Baddeck, N.S., where they were attending on scholarships won last April at the Victoria Dance Festival.

Woman Collapses

Accused Helped Out of Court

A 48-year-old woman charged with attempted suicide, was half-carried from city police court yesterday after she collapsed into the arms of a police matron.

The woman was taken into custody Sunday night when police, called to a Graham Street home, found her bleeding from lacerations on both wrists.

PLEA ENTERED

During the hearing of the charge against her in city police court, Magistrate William Ostler entered a plea of not guilty on her behalf.

"I don't think she understands the charge," said the magistrate.

Remanding her to Aug. 15, he advised prosecutor Angus Smith to have a psychiatrist interview the woman.

She had left the prisoner's box in company with a matron when she suddenly broke into sobs and sagged to the floor.

A detective ran to assist the matron and together they carried the woman from the court.

War Canoes Race on Lake

GANGES — Four huge war canoes — each manned by 11 paddlers — battled it out on Bullock's Lake here over the weekend as 700 people looked on.

The paddlers were all members of Chief Thunderbird's Saanich tribe. Prior to the four-lap race around the lake, Chief Thunderbird and his five sons performed traditional dances for the spectators.

Women of the tribe presided over a huge salmon barbeque.

Premier Mourns Death of MLA

Poor health alone prevented Mrs. Buda Brown, provincial minister without portfolio who died Sunday in Vancouver, from being put in charge of a government department, Premier Bennett said yesterday.

Funeral services will be held in Vancouver Wednesday, with Mr. Bennett, other cabinet members and several MLAs acting as honorary pallbearers. The premier expressed sorrow at the death of the minister in a statement issued after an out-of-the-capital cabinet meeting in the oldtime goldrush community of Barkerville.

ON NORTHERN TOUR

Mr. Bennett and several members of the cabinet are on a week-long northern tour. Mrs. Brown, 67, a member of the cabinet since 1960, died from cancer. She had been ill for several months.

"Of course she would have received a portfolio if her health had been better," Mr. Bennett said, "I had always held high hopes it would have improved so she could take charge of a government department."

SEVERE BLOW

The premier said her death was a severe blow to himself personally, to the government and to the people of B.C. CCFNDP opposition leader Robert Strachan said yesterday:

Anniversary Talk Changes Nothing

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin talked Monday about Berlin on the first anniversary of the wall dividing the city.

The result as reported by the state department: "No significant change in the situation."

The Russian asked for the interview Sunday. He did not bring any written message from his government, nor did he submit any new proposals or mention the anniversary, officials reported afterwards.

BRIEF MEETING

The two men met for only 23 minutes.

Neither the state department nor Dobrynin explained why Moscow sent its envoy to seek Rusk. But it strongly indicated that the Russian came to bring up a minor point as a follow-up of the conversations Rusk had recently with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Geneva.

Rusk and Gromyko met in the Swiss city when both attended the closing ceremonies of the conference on Laos last month. They had extensive talks on Berlin but failed to break the deadlock.

Bedouins, Herds Return To 'Banned' Villages

SETIF, Algeria (Reuters) — Thousands of Bedouin nomads were returning from the Sahara desert Monday to graze their herds on the high plateau area near Setif for the first summer since the start of the Algerian war nearly eight years ago.

The plateau—the Petite Kabylie—is coastal area of flat uplands and almost impenetrable mountains in eastern Algeria that the French army never could subdue during the Moslem insurrection that ended last March.

The area was put under a ban during the war and the inhabitants, including entire villages, were evacuated by the French. The villages were then destroyed to prevent their being used by the insurgent army. Roads were closed and French aircraft fired on anyone seen below.

Today, normal life is resuming in the area, with hundreds of black camel-skin Bedouin tents dotting the rolling countryside.

Leading Anglicans Ousted by Ghana

ACCRA—Ghana has expelled two leading Anglican churchmen after a week-long state-church clash over Ghana's National Youth Movement.

The bishop of Accra, Dr. Richard Roseveare, and the archbishop of West Africa, Most Rev. Cecil J. Patterson, left here by air after the expulsion orders were disclosed to attend a previously scheduled church conference at Lagos, Nigeria.

A brief statement from the interior ministry said Roseveare was being deported from Ghana because his presence was no longer considered "conducive to the public good."

The statement did not mention Patterson.

Capri Pants, Capri Dance

RAVELLO, Italy (UPI) — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy slipped away to the fabled Isle of Capri Monday night aboard a yacht owned by an Italian automobile-manufacturing family.

The first lady of the U.S., who at times has emphasized

She had dinner with some friends and then went dancing in a cellar night club crowded by tourists and socialites. The night spot is called the "No. 2 Club."

Leading in Space

THE SOVIET UNION'S leadership in the race into space appears to have been firmly established by its latest achievement in rocketry. This triumph, the more impressive for coming as a surprise and not attended by the prior publicity and speculation that must go with each American advance, must be regarded with some disappointment by the West and the United States in particular. But the whole world nevertheless will recognize this new evidence of human ingenuity and skill.

Indeed, because humanity's greatest interest is in humanity rather than its surroundings, one may wonder if in devoting so obviously great a proportion of its resources and energy to ensuring cosmic Russia is not setting itself back in its efforts to secure first place in the minds of the world for its philosophy which makes state transcendent and man a pawn.

With this latest victory the Soviet Union has gained immediate political advantages: a quickening, no doubt, of national spirit in its own land, and of Communist spirit in the other lands behind the Iron Curtain; a diversion of attention from its intransigence over methods of disarmament and particularly of ending nuclear tests, and an equally momentary but perfectly timed distraction on the anniversary of the Berlin wall that stands to Communist shame.

But none of these gains is apt to be permanent or even long-lasting. When the present excitement has died down, and when the first moon-landing is over, the eyes of the world will still be on the lack of freedom and the slow material advancement in the Soviet bloc; the world will still judge the Soviet Union by human gain or loss more than by its supremacy in a segment of scientific endeavor.

Placing two men in separate but close and long-sustained orbits is an important milestone in space exploration, however, and while it may not brighten Russia's political image enduringly, it is a great credit to the scientists and technologists and the courageous astronauts who made it possible.

The Musical Ride

THIS WEEK THOUSANDS of Victorians of all ages will thrill to the sight and sound of the famous musical ride of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. And well they may, for without question it is one of Canada's great spectacles which deservedly has earned the force praise from all over the world with its display of superb horsemanship and faultless cavalry drill.

However, the performance of the ride in Victoria has been marred to date by its relegation in status to nothing more than the final act of a small American circus.

This is not to say that the circus in by any means an inferior one—some of the acts are very good indeed—but it hardly provides either the setting or the atmosphere to be expected for a display which touches every Canadian's national pride.

To make matters worse is the fact that because of circus equipment striven all over the forefront of the arena the RCMP detachment is forced to carry out its intricate maneuvers well in the background—in some cases almost out of view of many of the spectators.

Whatever the excuses or explanations, and there will no doubt be many, purple elephants and red coats just don't go together. It is to be hoped that the centennial celebration authorities will recognize this and do something to rectify the situation before the week is over.

A New Personality

THE VAGARIES of fate were reflected in the brief visit paid to Victoria over the weekend by Mr. Richard Nixon. Two years ago he could not have come here without the fanfare attendant to a VIP. This time the former American vice-president slipped quietly in and got like so many of his countrymen enjoying a private holiday.

Mr. Nixon is still much to the fore in the American political scene, although at the moment immersed primarily in his bid for the governorship of California. This takes precedence, as he indicated in a television interview when denying any idea of running again for the presidency two years hence. He probably takes it for granted that Mr. Kennedy will be elected for a second term, but 1968 will be another matter. The White House will open then to a new incumbent, since a president cannot hold office for more than eight years.

By 1968 Mr. Nixon may have six years behind him as the governor of California, about to be the largest state in the union in terms of population and thus adding to his stature. The memory of his narrow defeat two years ago, when he came so close to occupying the White House, no doubt also remains to challenge his metal.

Mr. Nixon was so relaxed and competent in his TV interview it invited the thought that had he been equally masterful in his famous television debate with Mr. Kennedy he would have won the last presidential election. It was the projection of the Kennedy poise and personality on that occasion which probably turned the tide in the president's favor. He showed to greater advantage than did Mr. Nixon.

It was a new Nixon who spoke briefly while here; full of easy grace and conveying a marked impression of political quality. He may well be the Republican standard-bearer in 1968, tempered by adversity to fresh accomplishments.

Decided Success

THE EXPO-LODGING agency set up to handle tourist accommodation this year seems to have been a decided success. It claims never to have failed to find lodging for visitors so far.

This is exceptionally creditable because of the vast influx of tourists induced by the proximity of the Seattle fair. Up-island centres have not shared the traffic but this city has played host to a record number of visitors. It is gratifying to learn that none has gone without cover.

The Expo-Lodging experiment has proved to be a clearing-house of immense value; enough to make it a permanent institution.

AS FAR as I know, not having looked up his glossary, Shakespeare never said anything about postage stamps. They didn't have a post office in his day but had there been no doubt he'd have managed some apt comment on the subject.

He said almost everything else about the modern, manners and motives of human affairs.

The bard is in the limelight again, it indeed he ever left it, because two years hence his 400th birthday anniversary is due, and his admirers in England would like a stamp bearing his head to mark this auspicious occasion. Two years' notice seems a long time, but you know how it is when one attempts to enter the labyrinth of government.

You can't begin early enough.

The chances are none too good. There is, or has been, an unending rule in Britain that the head of no other person than the Queen must appear on a British stamp. It is a rule that has its virtue.

It distinguishes British stamps at a glance from those of all other countries, for, you see, the name of Shakespeare's accepted title never appears. Alas, if all nations there is considered to be no need for a printed identifying emblem. The Queen personifies the nation.

I suppose there is rather a touch of arrogance about this, but it has been very effective.

Nevertheless I doubt that an occasional head of an eminent personage would seriously impair the prestige of either the Queen or the mother country over which she reigns. Both are secure enough to sustain the odd exception.

And no one would warrant the honor more than Shakespeare. Only Churchill might challenge his status as the greatest Englishman of all time, and that would depend on how your interests run.

There is an anomaly about Shakespeare, too. He belongs to the world while still primarily to his native heath. And other nations have not hesitated to acknowledge his genius by putting his features on one of their stamps.

His own country has likewise devalued him this gesture.

The U.K. post office, of course, may think he's had ample recognition in other ways; one suspects however they're just being stuffy about departing from precedence.

They turned thumbs down hard three years ago when the patrons of that other national bard, Burns, wanted his head on a postage stamp to mark his 200th natal anniversary. Perhaps in another 100 years they'll waver round.

Some other nations have given Burns a stamp as they have Shakespeare. Russia for instance, which likes to think of him as of their ilk, forgetting it was not capitalist society that rebellious Robert aimed his barbs at but tyranny.

Shakespeare at least, however, the dozen of that great period of English history, the Elizabethan era, should be able to deny the protocol that to date has permitted no deviation. And without the least prejudice to the Queen.

Canada manages some heads other than that of Her Majesty, and in her own native land she can compete even more easily with the fecundity of others.

For one thing, she is better to look at.

An Ancient Immunity

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

AS a work of fiction, it would, probably, have been rejected out of hand. It lacked plausibility. It just didn't seem to ring true. The plot was rough and uneven, as if the script writers could never quite make up their minds whether to dwell on the solemn majesty of the law as it took its course, or on some low comedy situations of the kind that might be expected to crop up in an old Laurel and Hardy classic.

And this, perhaps, is just about what might be expected when the Parliamentary Press Gallery, which has been churning out news of one kind or another since Confederation, becomes directly involved in the developments on which it is reporting. Fortunately, it doesn't happen often.

It began when a Mr. Raymond Spencer Rodgers applied for an associate membership in this fine and historic institution. Mr. Rodgers' case was a little out of the ordinary. He had been an active member, while serving as Ontario editor of the Toronto periodical, Saturday Night. But on becoming a part-time representative of The St. Catharines Standard, he had felt that he could no longer qualify for active membership and applied, accordingly, for an associate member's status.

This application the executive officers of the Parliamentary Press Gallery rejected, in their wisdom, as not meeting the requirements laid down in the gallery's constitution.

Unlike unscrupulous applicants of the past, the legitimate and indefatigable Mr. Rodgers took legal action. County Court Judge Francis Casselle granted Mr. Rodgers an interim injunction ordering the Parliamentary Press Gallery to refrain from harassing Mr. Rodgers from its facilities until such time as an Ontario Supreme Court judge could hear an application for a writ of mandamus on Mr. Rodgers' behalf.

Up to this point, it all flows smoothly and logically enough.

In accordance with established practice, a billiff was dispatched to Parliament Hill to serve notice of the injunction on the senior officers of the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

It was at this point that the plot took a novel twist.

The High Court of Parliament, here as at Westminster, has guarded long and jealously the ancient rights, privileges and immunities which were wrung from reluctant monarchs during a struggle lasting a thousand years and more.

The Packback

The Newcomers

By GREGORY CLARK

AT LUNCH, one of the four of us, partly of French descent, his grandmother having been a French-Canadian, was very amused at the outbreak of one of the party against new Canadians in general, and those who had lately moved next door to him.

The outbreak was inspired by the presence, at the next table to us, of a merry group of blond men and women who were talking in a foreign tongue. Yet, by their dress and general attitude, they were certainly Canadians very much at home.

"It's a fine thing," said our protesting member, "to have to listen to some foreign jabber next door, and then sit

During a good part of this time, the struggle was a tug-of-war between Parliament and the other courts of the land. Successive monarchs used the King's justice in a continuing effort foredoomed to failure, to keep Parliament and its troublesome members in line.

Of the vast assortment of potent, ill-defined rights and privileges that the Canadian Parliament has inherited, many and perhaps most are designed to allow Parliament to attend to its business free of interference on the part of kings, billiffs, process-servers, the ordinary courts (both high and low) of the realm and/or any others who might have a mind to meddle or trespass.

Some measure of the potency of Parliament's vague but sweeping powers in this field is provided by the fact that once Parliament decides (as it sometimes has) to imprison some hapless offender for the crime of contempt of Parliament, a writ of habeas corpus is ineffective and ordinary courts are powerless to interfere.

One field which houses of Parliament have always guarded with special zeal is their exclusive jurisdiction over the affairs of the precincts of Parliament. The Canadian Senate and Commons have their own protective staff. They and their officers decide what to do with offenders against the majesty of Parliament.

We left a billiff, a few moments ago, trudging up to the Parliament buildings to serve notice of an injunction and further legal proceedings on officers of the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

It was easy enough for him to make his way into the buildings, through the throngs of tourists, foreign and domestic. He was, in fact, scarcely noticed on route.

Once on the premises of the Parliamentary Press Gallery, he had Press Gallery secretary Peter Dempsey pointed out to him, and attempted, without more ado, to serve the notice he carried.

But Mr. Dempsey, a keen constitutionalist, felt immediately that something was wrong, somewhere, somehow. He shied away from the document as nervously as if it had been a horned viper. Instead of the innocent piece of paper that it was.

He questioned the billiff's right to serve the notice within the sacred precincts of the Parliament buildings—a constitutional point with which the astonished billiff lacked experience. Finally, he refused to accept service. And when the billiff threw the document on his desk, he made it clear that he had no intention of having anything to do with it.

Members of Parliament's protective staff escorted the disgruntled billiff to the exit.

The billiff lost no time in reporting to the sheriff's office on this unprecedented and disquieting development. What should he do? Puzzled officials there, none too sure how far the powers, privileges and immunities of Parliament ran, advised a cautious course. They urged the billiff to try to arrange for service of the notice somewhere outside the precincts of Parliament.

And for a time, it appeared that a fascinating stalemate might develop, with the senior officers of the Parliamentary Press Gallery holed up in the Parliament buildings, with the zealous billiff waiting just outside the grounds for one of them to emerge.

But it didn't turn out that way. Gallery president Clement Brown, anxious to facilitate proceedings, agreed to stroll down to Ottawa's Wellington Street, there to accept the legal notice. And this he did to the relief, it may be, of a perplexed sheriff's office.

What will happen next will, of course, be determined by the ordinary processes of law and justice.

But in the meantime, the powers, privileges and immunities of Parliament, all the more awesome because they are vague and ill-defined, have been safeguarded to the hilt.

Washington Calling

Using a Precious Privilege

By MARQUEZ CHILIN

WHILE for the Right peace may be a dirty word, evidence accumulates that others feel different about it and possess sufficient conviction to put their belief to the test of the voting public. At least 20 candidates are running for U.S. Congress in a dozen states on a peace platform—disarmament and an end to nuclear testing.

For most of these believers, the exercise is likely to be just that. It is a determined effort to carry the danger of the arms race and the perils of continuing fallout to a larger audience in a do-it-yourself election campaign.

As for others, the peace issue could prove to have more substance than the cynical press assumes. The peace candidates are a striking phenomenon of the time. As the Soviets begin a new test series, keeping their own people in complete ignorance of the nuclear arms race, the candidates are a strong advertisement of the right of choice in a free society.

The most interesting of these is Stuart Hughes, grandson of Chief Justice of the United States Charles Evans Hughes. A professor of modern European history at Harvard and a former state department research director, the 66-year-old Hughes is running as an independent candidate for the Senate in Massachusetts. Contrary to the expectation of the professionals in both parties, Hughes' backers, mostly college students belonging to the Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy and the New England Political Action for Peace (PAX), got more than 150,000 signatures on petitions putting him on the ballot in November. Of this total 114,000 were validated, with 72,514 signatures needed to qualify.

France's Peasantry

Wave of Unrest

By NEAL ASCHKENSON from Paris

A NEW wave of peasant unrest threatens France. All over the northwest, in the last few weeks, mass demonstrations have pelted the estates of large landowners, attacked and destroyed production line farms for pigs and chickens, and turned elected representatives out of bad at all hours of the early morning.

For Britain and the United States, countries which have forgotten what it feels like to have a peasantry, such scenes evoke the agrarian rebellions of the Middle Ages. But in the age of the Common Market, France must now face the question of whether peasant farming can be adapted as a useful component of 20th century society, or whether it is inescapably doomed.

This is seen as a social problem rather than an economic one. One peasant leader told me: "The Paris basin could supply all France's agricultural needs, apart from wine. But the rest of France would be a desert."

Millions of French families earn their living from the land, and in the north and west of the country holdings are densely crowded and often economically small. In such areas there is overpopulation enough, the anger of peasants in these regions breaks out against richer peasants who buy them out and turn them into landless agricultural laborers, and against strangers who buy farming land when they already have a secure job in another profession and refuse even to let it out to peasants. This was the case with the actor, Jean Gabin. The price of land is still lower than anywhere else in the Common Market, but it is rising, especially after the massive return of Europeans from Algeria, and profitable speculation is not difficult.

It is interesting to compare France's reaction to this problem with that of Poland—a Communist state with similar, though graver, rural overpopulation. For both states, the operation is two-pronged. On the one hand the poor peasants are reorganized and protected against their exploiters; on the other, industry is shifted to the countryside to drain off population into sounder jobs.

Poland attempted the first by forced collectivization, which was abandoned as a catastrophic failure in 1958, and the second by sitting entirely new heavy industries in districts where the rural population was most dense—a relatively successful operation.

France, respectful of the rights of private enterprise, has achieved little in the way of decentralizing industry to the regions which need it, but is now doing a great deal to entrench and protect its peasantry.

This is the context of the present unrest, which follows the Assembly's mutilation of the new agricultural bill. This bill, introduced by General de Gaulle's enterprising minister of agriculture, M. Edgar Planard, was originally a bold attempt to create an alliance between the younger and more extreme peasant organizations and the government. To prevent land passing from the hands of genuine farmers, state purchasing agencies with a right of pre-emption are being set up to buy holdings which come on the market and to re-sell them to farmers with insufficient land.

Other provisions set a ceiling to the amount of land one man can exploit on his own. A third section of the bill provides funds to help peasants resettle in less crowded districts, to re-train for other work, and to enable them to retire at a reasonable age in security.

Land-owning interests in the Assembly—and in the government itself—managed greatly to reduce the bill's effects; the right-wing press, in particular, cried that the state purchasing agencies affronted the "sacred right of property." The result was a renewed outbreak of peasant agitation and violence, especially in Brittany, and both peasant organizations reacted angrily against the amendments to the bill. The more radical body, the Young Farmers Centre (CNJA) blamed M. Planard for giving way, and threatened widespread disorders. The elder group (FNSEA) complained in addition that the bill failed to guarantee agricultural prices.

The peasants have promised not to resort to erecting road blocks, at least during the holiday season. But serious upheavals now seem likely in the autumn, in spite of Prime Minister Pompidou's warning that he would not tolerate acts of violence. The irony of the situation is that those who oppose the "gentleman farmers" are themselves highly conservative. The young peasants want to spread co-operative farming, but both bodies have as their main object to keep the peasant population on the land, and regard projects for rural industry with suspicion.

The prospects for French agriculture are excellent, but this has not yet persuaded the peasants to see their job as part of a national economic effort. To them it remains a way of life.

Today In History

Washington and London announced 21 years ago today—in 1941—that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill had met and agreed on an Atlantic Charter.

The document included an eight-point plan for world peace, guaranteeing all men freedom of expression, of worship and freedom from want and fear.

hog farmer, got 15 per cent of the vote and put all but $513 of his own money into his $3,679 campaign fund.

Considering running as an independent, he says he is "not too kind of passive pacifist who thinks he could have complete unilateral disarmament without disaster if we simply do nothing as an alternative to war and war jobs." In his campaign literature, he proposed a long list of remedies ranging from using America's agriculture surplus to wage peace to a United Nations police force.

In Baltimore, Mrs. Caroline R. Ramsey, the wife of an investment broker, is running as a Republican on a peace platform in a strongly Democratic district. In Republican New Hampshire, Mrs. Helen Bliss is seeking the Democratic nomination in the Second District with a broad program of ways and means to end the arms race.

This is the fringe—some would call it the lunatic fringe—of American political life. But if these candidates, scattered across the country, share one thing, it is a deep concern over the drift and apathy that they fear will end in a third world war. They are also aroused over the increasing fallout from nuclear testing and the way in which official sources constantly play down the possible consequences.

They share, too, a sense of urgency early lacking in this capital today. Research the apparent public apathy, there may be great concern over the present trend toward more and more massive armaments. The peace candidates are putting their convictions to the test at a considerable cost in time, effort and money. Whatever the outcome, they are exercising the precious privilege of a free society.

Market Rises In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Helped by buying of aircraft issues, the stock market crept upward Monday. The advance was relatively small and came on continued light trading.

Wall Street, the analyst said, was waiting to see how much President Kennedy would disclose about his tax reduction plans.

The aircraft appeared to benefit from several sources. Companies involved in the U.S. space program were highly recommended by several market letters in recent days.

Some analysts believe Russia's success with twin orbital shots over the weekend will eventually cause more U.S. spending in this field.

Among Canadian issues, Walker-Gooderham was up 1/4 and Distillers Seagrams 1/4. Granby Mining and Hudson Bay Mining closed 1/4 higher. Dome Mines finished 1/4 lower and McIntyre Porcupine was down 1/4. International Nickel was off 1/4 and Aluminum Ltd. 1/4.

Montreal Up

MONTREAL (CP)—Stocks moved moderately higher on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges in light trading Monday. Gains outnumbered losses by 74 to 57.

Finance companies were strong. Industrial Acceptance rose 1/4 to 21 1/2 in active trading and Traders Finance A was up 1/4 at 12 1/2. Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce rose a point among banks. Noranda rose 1/4 to 30 1/4 to feature trading in base metals. Aluminum gained 1/4 to 24 1/4 and International Nickel fell 1/4 to 67.

On index, banks were up 0.08 at 60.31, utilities off 0.1 at 131.1, industrials up 0.1 at 203.6, combined up 0.7 at 246.1, papers up 1.6 at 472.1 and goods off 0.49 at 79.98.

Toronto Climbs

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market moved hesitantly upward during moderate trading Monday.

In the main list, Walker-Gooderham and Ontario Wholesale A each advanced a whole share. Toronto-Dominion Bank and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce both 1/4 and Consolidated Paper 1/4.

Kennedy Pledges Tax Cut in 1964

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy announced Monday night he is going to ask Congress at the start of next year for tax reforms including a reduction of tax rates.

He rejected an immediate business-spurring tax cut but promised to call Congress into an emergency session to slash taxes if there was a slide in the U.S. economy before the end of the year.

Emergency Session Possible

Kennedy made a radio-television address from his desk in the White House. It was his first since he took office last March. He said he would call Congress into an emergency session to slash taxes if there was a slide in the U.S. economy before the end of the year.

He said the United States was in a recession when he took office.

Kennedy pointed to charts showing increases in economic sectors since he took office. He said they showed gains but not sufficient gains.

The latest figures for July, he said, do not indicate the United States is drifting into a new recession. Looking ahead, there was every reason to expect further progress.

INVESTING MORE

Businessmen, Kennedy said, are investing more than last year, though not as much as would be desired.

The stock market rested on a sounder basis now than last year and there had been the best record of stable prices since the Second World War.

Kennedy said the United States would not find full employment and full production until better use is made of available resources.

ASKING CONGRESS

The president said he is asking Congress to push to enactment this year measures to encourage growth. Specifically, he said, Congress should before it goes home enact the investment tax credit designed to stimulate investment in machinery, and these other measures:

The bill to step up federal help for public works in areas where unemployment is serious;

Legislation to continue the special extension of unemployment compensation;

The trade expansion bill, providing for negotiations on tariff issues, intended to enlarge exports;

And measures to help finance higher education, especially building facilities for colleges.

WANTS ACTION

The president and Congress must be committed to action and pressure groups should not be allowed to stand in the way of efforts to meet essential economic needs, he said.

Kennedy said he was not talking about federal spending getting out of control. Unessential military facilities were being cut.

Quad Sisters Named Brothers Still B, C

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ruth and Alec Becker have chosen names for two of their 13-day-old quadruplets. But they can't agree on names for the other two.

Mr. Becker said the girls will be called Brucine Paula and Stacey Lynn.

The boys are still known as B and C. At birth, the quads were A, B, C and D, in order of arrival.

More Crime With Drink

CHASE, B.C. (CP)—President William Paddon of the chamber of commerce here says there has been a worsening of crime since the liquor laws were changed giving Indians the unrestricted right to buy liquor.

Mr. Paddon made the charge Sunday at a special meeting of the chamber called to discuss police protection after an elderly woman was beaten.

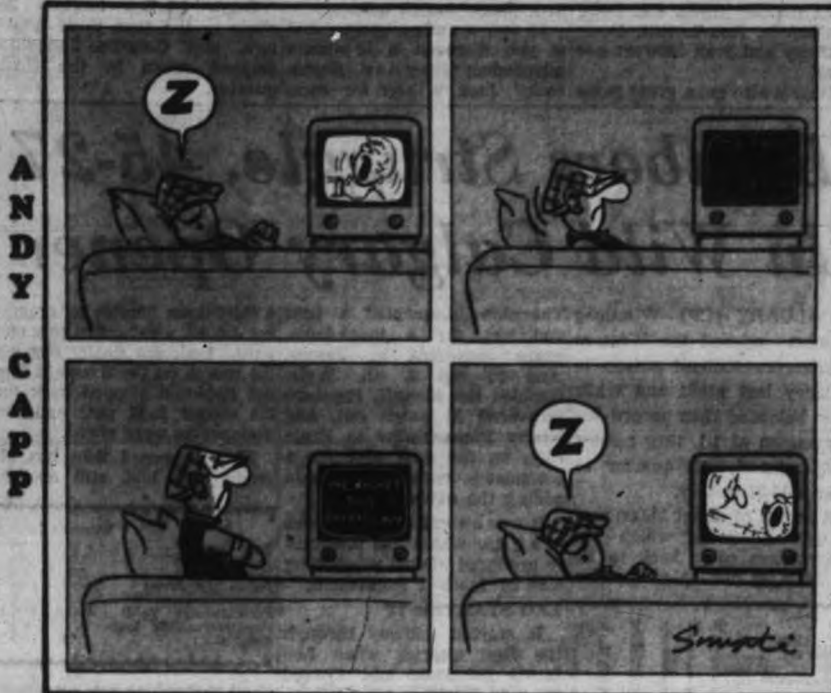

The chamber attached no blame to the two RCMP officers stationed here who were checking a dance 25 miles away when the woman was attacked by a man who invaded her home.

It was noted the RCMP officers had to patrol the highway and serve distant areas along Shuswap Lake and often worked 18 hours a day.

Common Ills Will Vanish In 50 Years

VANCOUVER (CP)—A professor of pharmacy said Monday new medicines and treatment methods will "virtually eliminate the common diseases" during the next 50 years.

"The scientific advances of the past half century will pale beside those of the next 50 years," said Dr. Jack E. Orr, dean of pharmacy at Seattle's University of Washington.

Berliners Besiege Wall

The column, headed by youths carrying a seven-foot wooden cross with the inscription "we accuse" turned and headed back to its starting point in the American sector of Kreuzberg, more than six miles away.

Stone-throwing West Berliners provoked East German guards into throwing tear gas grenades.

The demonstration drew a large crowd of silent East Berliners on the other side of the wall. But they were dispersed by a convoy of East German police who were rushed to the scene.

Approaches to the border point on the Eastern side were cordoned off by East German police.

The protest march advanced on Bernauerstrasse after having moved for more than five hours along the 28-mile wall of brick, concrete and barbed wire.

The anniversary of the wall was officially marked by a three-minute standstill in the city and the tolling of the American-donated freedom bell.

City officials had appealed for silence during the standstill but motorists in the city ignored it, sounding their horns even before Mayor Willy Brandt finished a one-minute speech which was broadcast over outdoor loudspeakers.

Argentine Crisis

In this capital Monday, police used tear gas in a clash with workers attempting to occupy meat packing plants. Frontier guards took over a packing plant to enforce a lockout called by management in retaliation for five- and two-hour strikes called by the workers in support of wage demands.

And the effects of a Saturday fire that burned out the Buenos Aires power station continued to spread.

Some 2,500,000 persons were left without water, light, power and other service in the wake of the $8,000,000 fire. Major industrial areas were shut down and officials said some 250,000 workers would be laid off. Argentines lined up to buy milk, meat, bread and water, their supplies threatened by lack of refrigeration.

Rumors of uprisings by provincial army garrisons were rife.

Palmer Gets Even With Four Birdies

AKRON, Ohio—One of the things which make Arnold Palmer great is his tremendous determination, and there has never been any better example of it than in the American golf classic which concluded Sunday.

Selects Hand Californians First Defeat

Southern California didn't quite make the grade in its attempt to finish B.C. Cricket Week with an undefeated record. B.C.'s select side took care of that, winning Sunday's final match by three wickets.

Anil Lashkari batted for 63 runs and Cliff Severn got 54 as the visitors were all out for 151. The B.C. side replied with 152 for seven, led by Keith Bickmore with 57 not out.

Victory gave the B.C. side possession of the new Centennial Trophy, which will be up for competition whenever the sides meet in the future. It also left the California club with a record of four victories, one draw and a loss.

Leaving It to George Makes Eagles Champs

Eagles won it Sunday, beating Transport Workers, 5-3, to break a tie in the final game of the schedule. And Brice, who won two games for them Saturday to give them that tie, came back to go all the way again Sunday, beating his brother Les for their 12th straight victory.

Team now waits for the winner of a best-of-three semi-final between Naval Vets and Transports, which begins tonight at 6:30 at Macdonald Park.

Catcher Jim Moody had a triple, a double and a single for Eagles Sunday. Art Worth hit a triple and a pair of singles for Transports and Gary Bishop contributed a home run and a single.

Nanaimo Girl Scores First At Drag Race

Dawn Sarslate of Nanaimo borrowed her boy friend's stock Chevrolet and bettered his best time Sunday to win the Quarter-Milers drag races, clocking in at 102 mph to become the first female member of the 100 club.

Other winners were Gordie Hatch, Parker Okane, Doug Tribe, Harvey Brown, John Thomson, Jim Atterbury, Ray Mitchell, Jim Loiselle, Mel Marshall, Gary Cunningham, Lyall Kidd and Dave Fiddick.

Another Try Ahead For Carnarvon Club

Victoria's Carnarvon League all-stars left Victoria at 6 a.m. today, bound for Walla Walla, Wash., and their second straight try for the Pony League baseball regional tournament championship.

Play in the four-team, double-elimination tournament begins tomorrow night, with all games scheduled at night under lights. Others in the competition are championship teams from Oregon, Washington and Hawaii.

Hornets Look Good In League Opener

Victoria Hornets opened the Fraser Valley Junior Canadian Football League Sunday with a 27-6 victory over Richmond Colts at Carnarvon Park.

Perhaps remembering a 33-7 trouncing they took from Colts last year, Hornets never gave the visitors a chance, building up a 26-0 lead before Ian Mc-

Cue scored Richmond's touchdown.

Quarterback Dave Heywood passed to Trev Hallam and Terry Kechens for touchdowns in the first half, and Terry Cox ran 19 yards and 14 yards for the second-half touchdowns, both converted by Barry Neff. Al Boden kicked a single.

Ontario Junior In Golf Sweep

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sue Hilton, 18-year-old Ontario open and junior champion, Sunday became the first to win both the Canadian ladies' Close and the Canadian junior golf championships.

She accomplished it with a birdie-binge which started on the eighth hole of the final round of the 54-hole medal-play tournament. Her final round of 75 gave her a 54-hole total of 237, just enough to beat out, by one stroke, Edmonton's Betty Stanhope Cole.

Mrs. Cole appeared to have the championship tucked away and Miss Hilton, playing eight holes behind, was no worry at all.

Miss Hilton was well over par after her first seven holes at Elmhurst club, which was used for the last 18 holes after a Saturday rain had inundated the Southwood club.

Miss Hilton started her comeback by getting birdies on the eighth and ninth holes, but still finished with a 39. When she birdied the 10th it was certain that she would need a 36 on the last nine to win.

Sue Hilton, London 237

Wakeham's 72 Leads Fifth-Place B.C.

Manitoba Leads Willingdon Cup Golf

By HARRY YOUNG

Columnist Golf Writer

LONDON—British Columbia's defending Willingdon Cup team ran into a rash of trouble on a chill and windy afternoon at Sunningdale Golf Club and at the half-way point of the team competition, was in fifth place and a massive dozen strokes behind a surprising Manitoba team.

Only provincial champion Bill Wakeham played close to expected form on the B.C.

team, and the Gorge Vale star was a bit uncertain at times in posting his one-over-par 72.

Johnny Johnston had a 73, Bob Kidd a 75 and Bert Ticehurst a 78 for an 18-hole total of 298.

Bill Pidiaski led the Manitoba team with a four-under-par 67, Ted Homeniuk had a 71, Bill Finninger a 72 and Ron Fiddler a 76 for a team total of 286.

But while 12 strokes is a lot to overcome in 18 holes even for a four-man team, the crestfallen B.C. players felt that the main obstacles in rallying to retain the trophy are the Ontario and Alberta teams, nine and five strokes ahead, respectively, with 289 and 293.

REVER HAS 6-6

Saskatchewan was unexpectedly in fourth place with 294, due mainly to the brilliant 66 turned in by 25-year-old Keith Rever of Regina, which is believed to be a new course record.

Wakeham, reversing the general trend which saw the back nine play the toughest, putting the first green. But the Gorge Vale youngster was the steadiest of the B.C. team. He was trapped on the eighth for a second bogey and a loose tee shot into the trees on the short ninth cost him a third stroke to par.

But Wakeham, after making the turn in 37, came in with a 35. He rolled in a 60-footer for a birdie deuce on the second hole and had a 50-footer for another deuce on the 16th. Wakeham played the other 13 holes in par.

Ticehurst and Kidd, both turning in their worst scores in Willingdon Cup play, had different kinds of trouble. Ticehurst lost a stroke on the fourth with a drive into the Medway River and his third shot on the 600-yard 10th hole got imbedded in soft turf in front of the green and cost him a double-bogey seven.

Kidd missed four putts of less than four feet.

Johnston took a six on the par-three 16th to spoil what was otherwise a good round.

Only six players managed to break par of 71. Ontario's

Cycle Winners

Bill Wild and Carol Hay won the two senior races Sunday in Victoria Cycling Club's meet at Beacon Hill Park.

Mike Rasmussen and Ken Hay took the other races.

Gary Cowan and Bob Cochran, a U.S. Walker Cup player from Normand, Mo., had 69s. Former Canadian champion Ted Adams of Phoenix, Ariz., and Bob Williams of Lewiston, N.Y., had 70s.

The 36-hole Willingdon Cup match is decided on the scores turned in by provincial teams in the 36-hole qualifying round which settles which 64 golfers will start match play on Wednesday. Guessing is that it will take 152 to qualify.

That leaves Ticehurst needing considerable improvement to qualify. Also in danger is Richard Davies of Pasadena, British amateur champion. He could do no better than match Ticehurst's 78.

Use 2,4-D--Properly

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRES
Over the years, I have been sounding off in this column fairly regularly against the careless use of 2,4-D weedkillers. I think I had good reason to publish these warnings, for I have seen so many valuable plants injured or even killed by 2,4-D fumes drifting in from a careless weed-killing job on a nearby lawn.
Some readers, however, seem to have picked up the idea that I am advocating the total abolition of hormone weedkillers. Nothing could be further from the truth. I most certainly wouldn't want to go back to the days when dandelions and plantains had to be dug out of the lawn the hard way when a little dab of 2,4-D will remove them easily and painlessly. I am not against the use of 2,4-D. I am most strongly against its misuse.
What this boils down to, actually, is applying the 2,4-D in such a manner it stays put and doesn't go drifting on the wind into adjoining beds and gardens. Probably the greatest offender in this regard is the pneumatic sprayer which discharges the weedkiller fluid in the form of a fine mist. This is just asking for trouble, particularly when the lance of the sprayer is held high to get greater coverage of the lawn under treatment.
I'm afraid I can't give a clean bill of health, either, to those wax "logs" which are dragged across the lawn to kill weeds. From the appearance of this gadget, it should be just what the doctor ordered, and you wouldn't think there could be any possibility of drift.
Nevertheless I have had quite a few cases reported to me of 2,4-D poisoning in plants located downwind from the treated lawn, and I have noticed myself, when a neighbor was using one of these weedkiller logs, the smell of the 2,4-D was as strong in my garden as when a spray is used. I suspect a too-volatile form of 2,4-D is being used in the wax, and this is vaporizing in the warmth of the sun--drifting as fumes in the atmosphere.
I have written before about the one-gallon vinegar jug gadget and the hollow plastic cane affair, both of which discharge 2,4-D fluid in coarse droplets which stay put. It is also possible to buy "lawn fertilizer" which has a weedkiller combined with it. The stuff goes on in a dry state, and I have seen it used right up to the very edge of a flower border without damage to the plants.
Still another safe way is an aerosol can that discharges the weedkiller in the form of a sudsy foam. This doesn't drift to any appreciable extent; moreover, the dab of suds persists for some time, showing clearly which weeds in the lawn have been treated and which have not.
A most valuable weapon in my arsenal against weeds is a little plastic squeeze bottle that once contained an under-arm deodorant spray. I keep it filled with weedkiller, and I find I can use it on the leaves of individual weeds even when they are growing right in among my most desirable plants. I use a low-volatile form of 2,4-D so I have no trouble from fumes, and it is just a case of seeing that only the weed leaves are wetted, making sure none of it gets on the good plants.

ART BUCHWALD and the Stately Homes
It's a Tough Business

WOBURN ABBEY, England--The stately homes of England business is getting more competitive all the time. In order to save their baronial estates the British aristocracy are making more fervent attempts to attract paying proletarian visitors. It is one of the few times in English history when the poor are voluntarily helping out the rich.
By far the most active of all stately home-owners is the Duke of Bedford, who, starting with only 16 state rooms at Woburn Abbey, has developed his 3,000-acre estate into a sort of English Disneyland, with carnival rides, milk bars, restaurants, picnic grounds, souvenir shops, a pet zoo, and a park stocked with cattle, deer, cranes, wallabies and American buffalo.
The Duke said he has a $400,000 net each year to pay on Woburn Abbey, and he only grosses about $280,000; so he is always looking for new ways to keep the old home-stand going.
We were invited down for the week end as a non-paying guest and we must say it was quite an interesting experience. Unless you're in the middle of it, you don't realize what a tough business owning a stately home can be.
As we had dinner in the beautiful candlelit dining room with the Duke and the Duchess and their distinguished guests, the talk got around to the weather.
The Duchess didn't like the barometer reading, but the Duke assured her the barometer was always wrong.
The Duke is an avid souvenir-seller, and he was concerned about a certain ashtray that wasn't moving well.
The French-born Duchess said she had a great deal of luck selling the aprons that day, though they were very hard to autograph.
Lord Tavistock, the Duke's son, said he did well signing matchboxes. Lady Tavistock, his wife, was upset because people were asking for her autograph but weren't buying any souvenirs.
"I don't see why you should give them an autograph if they don't buy anything," she said.
"I never do," the Duchess said. "I always insist on their buying at least a guide."
Lord Tavistock said, "Daddy signs anything they give him."
Every guest at Woburn Abbey is expected to do his share and the next day, which was Sunday, found all of us up bright and early ready to man our posts. The Duchess' children by a former marriage were assigned to selling guide books in the parking lot. The Duchess worked the souvenir shop as the people came in, Lord and Lady Tavistock worked the souvenir shop as the people went out, the Duke was stationed at the souvenir shop at the gate where he got the people going in and out. Some house guests worked as guides, others behind counters.
Since we were inexperienced, our first assignment was to check up on the fishermen who pay a pound a day to fish in the Duke's private lake. But the catch is that they can't keep the fish and must throw them back.
Our job was to see that no one kept any of the Duke's fishes.
It was interesting for a while, but then we went word back we were getting bored, and so the Duke let us sell guide books. We did pretty well at it, too, as soon as we got the knack of it. "Get your program," we shouted, "can't tell one ancestor from another without a program!"
Fortunately the barometer was wrong and 11,125 people visited the Abbey that day.
That evening we were back in black tie in the state dining room, eating off Sevres china.
"How did the postcards sell, my dear?" the Duke asked his wife.
"Very well. But the antelope horns are still my best item."
"I hope we have enough to last us through the bank holiday."
As we sat in all the regal splendor of Woburn Abbey and our footman lit our cigar for us, we looked at the weary host and his wife, and we thought to ourselves, "Being a Duke in England is a helluva way to earn a living."
(To be continued.)

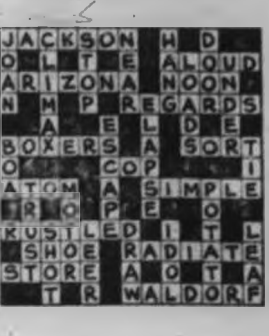

SHEILAH GRAHAM Reports
Tony Faces Problems

LONDON (NANA)--Tony Curtis is having some problems with the German brother of the girl he wants to marry, Christine Kaufmann. "Who needs Bernie Schwartz?" the brother was reported to have said. This, as you may know, is Tony's real name. The bright spot in the difficult situation, is Christine's mother who masterminds her career and nearly everything else. She likes Tony who is easy to like.
Mrs. Richard Burton spent a week in London with her close friend Mrs. Emily Williams, before the latter flew off to join her husband in New York. And I learned in London that Sybil did not stay in the Burton family home in Switzerland. She lived in a hotel in Geneva. And this does not read like a wife who is preparing to take her husband back.
Director Joe Mankiewicz has described Elizabeth Taylor as a woman of two completely different personalities--one is considerate and loving, especially to her children. The other is demanding and completely contemptuous of public opinion. . . . I was also told, although not by Mankiewicz, that when he was directing Liz two years ago in "Suddenly Last Summer," she came into his office, quite hysterical, and sobbed, "I've made a terrible mistake in marrying Eddie (Fisher)." . . . and I hear also that Elizabeth is determined to marry Richard Burton if it's the last thing she ever does.
Gregory Peck who is vacationing in a house near London, stands to make $1,000,000 from his share of "Guns of Navarone"--$350,000, plus a percentage.
There seems to be a hitch in the marriage plans of French star Alain Delon and beautiful Romy Schneider. Romy was visiting Alain in Sicily where he is starring with Burt Lancaster in "The Leopard," but she took off very abruptly. And now the question is, will they marry in September as planned?
Marlene Dietrich, looking younger and more slender than ever, is lingering in Europe and when last spotted was heading towards a film festival in Taormina, Italy.

JOHN CROSBY in the Herbal World
Neither Invited Nor Rejected

TANGIER -- "This is the beginning of the herbal world that stretches from Africa to the Far East," my friend, whom we shall call William, said. We were padding through the native quarter, which was dark and silent and closed-in. The silence is deafening after any Western city. The houses on the narrow streets are barred and shuttered and so, in a way, are the people who live in them.
"This is the outpost of a culture fashioned around substances other than alcohol--substances like the dagra, the ganja, the bangai, the kif, the dewameek, the majoun, and the hashish," he said. Kif is what we would call marijuana and it's imbedded in Arab culture and alcohol is in Judeo-Christian culture and in Tangier the two meet.
We stopped at a door and William banged on it hard. "Peter, open up! Open up!" Minutes went by and he kept banging and presently Peter opened up. He's an American and he was dressed in dirty white canvas pants and a shirt and sandals, with a thin rim of beard. "Hello," he said without warmth or coolness, neither inviting or rejecting us. It's symptomatic of the kif smoker that he can be truly neutral, truly removed from external passions, wrapped up in his interior visions. Peter was, as they say, stoned. "Can we come in?" asked William.
"Sure. Come in," said Peter. There was again neither invitation or rejection. He truly didn't care whether we did or we didn't. We went into the cool Arab house with its tiles and arches which Peter rents for $30 a month and sat on a rug on the floor because there was no place else to sit.
Peter pulled out a cigarette made of kif and lit it and passed it around. Everyone except me smoked it. He was waiting to keep my perceptions clear and sharp. "Where's Robert?" said William. There was a tremendously long pause. "He's around," said Peter finally, as if he had examined all the possibilities and that was the only way to suggest where Robert was. Presently Peter's wife came in, a rounded, lovely girl with dreamy eyes. She was stoned, too. "Could we see the house?" I asked. She smiled her dreamy smile and led me around with out a word. We went out on the roof under the stars, we looked at the sleeping children, two little girls, asleep on a mat under a blue light. (There wasn't a stick of furniture in the whole house.)
Peter is a writer and presently he showed us his latest writing: "Out of the vortex, the entrails spilling red, stars like diadems exploded, purple, green, curving and tearing the eyeballs like vomit into dissonance like distant symphonies, wah wah wah, inchoate and undulant."
That's kif writing, like kif talk, full of sounds and smells and visions and incoherence. There's a whole literature of it being turned out on egg crates in Los Angeles and Greenwich Village and being unread anywhere.
We went to a bar in the European sector where the European and American lushes hang out, the ones who live on a fixed income, who keep moving, mov-

Care, Prayer Urged For Abortion Bids

OTTAWA (CP) — Special tribunals should be set up to deal with requests for abortions arising from one of the drug manufacturers, says a United Church minister.

Rev. Gordon C. Smyth in his Sunday sermon at Parkdale United Church said authorization of abortions would require careful and prayerful thinking.

"A free society cannot only safeguard human freedom, but find ways of enlarging it. This is Canada, not Nazi Germany with its gas chambers to get rid of the aged... or the deformed."

Thalidomide has been blamed for deformities in children of mothers who took the drug early in their pregnancies.

BBG Finds No Solution For Holdouts

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Broadcast Governors gave no hint after a 3½-hour hearing Monday how it will deal with 15 privately-owned stations who so far have resisted CBC overtures to bring them into a new radio network.

The 15 stations are holdouts in the publicly-owned agency's plan—begun three years ago—to build a new network by next Oct. 1 to replace the existing Trans-Canada and Dominion networks.

Monday the CBC asked the governors to use their power under the 1958 Broadcasting Act to make network affiliation—under terms worked out in a long series of negotiations—a condition of the licences now held by 58 of the private stations.

These terms call for all 58 stations to carry at least 26 hours and seven minutes a week of CBC network material—much of it in the news, public affairs and documentary field. Most of the programming would be unsponsored, meaning that the stations would be getting no compensation for their time.

One of the 15 stations is Victoria's CJVI.

Ship Owners Ordered To Rid Beach of Tallow

OLYMPIA (AP)—The owners of a freighter which accidentally discharged 100 tons of tallow into Bellingham Bay July 30 were requested Monday to start cleaning up the area by Wednesday.

Cast Party

Members of the cast of the Victoria centennial pageant queue up for eats during a giant party in their honor at Royal Athletic Park Sunday. The approximately 1,000 cast members chewed their way through 500 pounds of potato salad, 1,200 sandwiches, 1,200 hot dogs, 1,000 units of ice cream in various forms, 3,600 pieces of cake, 800 bottles of pop and 25 pounds of potato chips according to the caterers.—(Karl Spreitz photo.)

3,500 Visit Royalist On Sunday

More than 3,500 Victorians boarded HMNZS Royalist Sunday afternoon during the ship's open house.

Her 550 officers and men returned the hospitality which they were shown during a week-long visit to the city. The ship sailed for Vancouver yesterday morning. She will spend a week there before calling at U.S. west-coast ports.

RCN ships which were open to the public during the navy's Salute to Victoria—including minesweepers Fortune, James Bay, Cowichan and Miramichi—played host to 2,400 visitors.

Circus Star Wonders:

How Do Mounties Get So Good So Fast?

Park Powerless

Circus Elephant Turns Out Lights

The circus elephant turned out the lights—but good—at Royal Athletic Park Sunday. When caterers from Lough's Banquet Room arrived at the park Sunday morning to begin heating coffee urns for the centennial pageant party there that afternoon, they found there was no electricity.

And members of the circus, quartered at the park, simultaneously found they weren't getting any juice in their living quarters.

It seems the park's main electric switch is located away up a pole, and two ropes hang down whereby the switch can be turned on and off. The circus elephant, in his explorations, had found the ropes, turned the switch off, and then pulled on both ropes until they broke near the top.

A hydro lineman was called and turned the power on again.

'Unfortunate'

Queen Omission Sad Oversight

The Queen was not included in the festivities at Royal Athletic Park Saturday "because of one of those unfortunate oversights," Aid. Michael Griffin said yesterday.

A citizen complained to the Colonist that "somebody made a bad mistake."

Aid. Griffin said it was "one of those which happen in the best of families."

In reply to criticism about presenting the RCMP musical ride on the same bill as the circus, he said the arrangement had been discussed with the RCMP before plans for the event were completed.

It was felt by the centennial committee something should be included on the program for children, said Mr. Griffin.

"The lieutenant-governor and the mayor expressed complete satisfaction with the program and were delighted with the show," he said.

Oak Bay Tribute

Plaque Honors Park Creator

A bronze plaque paying tribute to a 94-year-old man who spent years developing a park in Oak Bay will be unveiled by municipal officials at 2 p.m. today.

The plaque is a testimonial to the efforts of Thomas I. Lokier, 2455 Hamiota, instrumental in making Lokier Garden a place of beauty.

The garden is situated on municipally-owned property at the corner of Hamiota, Estevan, Musgrave and Thompson. It is noted for its lawns, shrubs, flowers and roses, many of which were planted and cared for by the elderly man.

Mr. Lokier attracted publicity nearly a dozen years ago when at the age of 83 he designed some gates and built cement pillars for the corner lot which he had turned into a garden.

A veteran performer of the Brahma bull and bronco stomping circuit yesterday paid enthusiastic tribute to the mounted men of the RCMP musical ride as "the greatest collection of horsemen it has been my privilege to watch."

And the thing that mystifies circus horseman Don Ricardo (real name: Dale Madden of Wichita, Kansas) is the fact few, if any, of the rodeos in the famed group ever threw a leg over the saddle before they enlisted with the corps.

SO GOOD SO FAST

"I started in this line when I was seven days old — my father, grandfather and great-grandfather have run a circus featuring riding acts in the midwest — and it amazes me that these fellows can get so good so fast," said the rodeo star.

ONE OF HIGHLIGHTS

Veteran Carson and Barnes circus hands stayed on at Royal Athletic Park Saturday night to watch the first show of the musical ride, said Don Ricardo. The RCMP group and the circus are appearing tonight in a program billed as one of the highlights of the city's centennial celebrations.

'GOOD CRITIC'

"Show people are good critics, they know the problems facing any performer," he added. The consensus among the circus trouper was the rodeos would be a tough act to follow.

The musical ride, said Don

Ricardo, differs in many ways from the high school, dressage and gallop horse act performed by the Kansas rider, who uses two palomino stallions in his performance.

And not the least difference is the type of saddle.

$4,000 SADDLE

Don Ricardo swings aboard a 100-pound, silver-laced western saddle which is insured at $4,000, while the Mounties use a 20-pound English officer's saddle.

The 31-year-old circus performer says he has used English saddles in various exhibitions and riding competitions, but his preference is, naturally, the western rig.

NOT SO SURE

Not so sure is young Constable Dave Owen of Edmonton, one of the musical ride team.

While Dave admits that saddle soap and elbow grease spell the difference between a life of buffet dinners and an easy chair, he still prefers the lighter model.

CAN'T BE BEAT

"The western saddle is designed for roping cattle and range work . . . once you saddle-soap the stiffness out of the English saddle, it can't be beat," he said, arching furiously at a cinch strap.

35 Men Quit Union Over Job Contract

Conflict over a work contract sparked a rebellion in Victoria Teachers' Union Local 888 that has resulted in about 35 members voting themselves out of the union.

The labor relations board granted cancellation of union certification after a hearing and an employee vote.

Affected are truckers, helpers and warehousemen at McWhirre Van and Storage and Stocker's Security Storage and Warehouse.

LOSE BUSINESS

Spokesman for the rebels, Peter Willis, said yesterday the decision was made because union demands were causing companies to lose business to the point where they had to resort to layoffs.

He said attempts by the union to bring wages in Victoria up to those in Vancouver resulted in companies being forced to raise their rates to the point where they were non-competitive.

REJECTED OFFER

He said the decision to pull out of the union came when its negotiators rejected a company offer three cents under that negotiated with other companies in the area.

The employees were willing to settle for the company offer, said Mr. Willis.

To have held out for what the union asked would have meant the layoff of "at least five men," he said.

WAKE LITTLE LENS

"I would rather see every-one working and making a little less," he said.

Parking Ban On Douglas Still Overdue

Parking ban for Douglas Street north of the roundabout is 1½ months overdue and civic officials yesterday seemed reluctant to press for quick action on the matter.

Victoria and Saanich both agreed to the ban which was supposed to have created room for six lanes of traffic by July 1, 1962, on that portion of Douglas Street.

Agreement to a traffic ban was one of the major conditions upon which the Capital Improvement District Commission was willing to allocate $175,000 in beautifying the approach to B.C.'s capital city.

WONDERS WHY

But as of yesterday, CIDC chairman J. Everett Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs, was still wondering why nothing has happened. Asked whether he thinks

Victoria and Saanich councils are trying to renege on their part of the bargain now the work has been carried out, he said:

"I assume this is only a temporary delay—I hope it is. If this persists much longer, it should be formally dealt with."

OFFICIAL DATE

July 1 was set as the official enforcement date for parking ban bylaws which were to have been prepared by the two councils.

"We hoped to have it ready by the time the tourist traffic started," said Mr. Brown. But the whole Douglas Street beautification project was beset by delays which may have caused this delay.

"I think they (city and Saanich) intend to go through with it but if it goes on for any length of time it should be brought before the CIDC for formal discussion."

MUST STAND UP

Reeve Stanley Murphy later confirmed to the Colonist that Saanich is compelled to stand up to its commitment with the CIDC.

However, in the interest of passing a parking prohibition bylaw which will be uniform with controls over the city portion of the street, Saanich will wait for city council to take action, said the reeve.

SOME TIME AGO

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell agreed the city was supposed to have had its parking ban bylaw in effect some time ago.

"The mayor has asked the engineer for a report on the beautification work which has not yet been completed. I think that's why it's being held up for the time being."

Drive-In Delays Plaza Plan

There were indications yesterday Saanich council has no intention of allowing construction of a drive-in ice cream building near the Tillicum-Burnside garden apartment development—even if it means blocking plans for a whole shopping plaza.

Council met for five minutes to grant a 60-day extension to a previous 30-day order prohibiting the issuance of a building permit for the proposed plaza.

MEETING FIRST

The meeting was called in a move to delay start of construction until after a public hearing can be held, said a municipal official.

Reeve Stanley Murphy said council has no objection to proposed plans for a plaza on a narrow strip of land between the garden apartments and a supermarket—it's the ice cream place they object to.

At a recent council meeting, municipal planner Tony Parr recommended that council delay its approval of plans because a drive-in ice cream business so close to an apartment development would not be suitable use of the land.

Deadline For Tax Thursday

Saanich homeowners have until 5 p.m. Thursday to avoid paying a penalty on their 1962 taxes. Payment is made at the municipal hall.

Two per cent interest will be levied after that date until Sept. 18 when the penalty jumps to four per cent, said comptroller John Tribe.

Saanich has between 15,000 and 18,000 rate-payers. It was not known yesterday what percentage of them have already paid their taxes.

AGAINST OWNER

Any investigation into the situation "should be brought against the owners, not the men who live on the property," said Coun. Bert Nelson.

There are 12 cubicles contained within the two buildings. They are without bathing facilities.

The water supply comes from two outside stand pipes, stated Mr. Graeme.

'CONDITION POOR'

The chimneys are on brackets. The buildings have no concrete foundations. "The general condition of the premises is very poor," said the municipal engineer who suggested council inspect the property "with a view of

Pensioners Live In Squalid State

Twelve old-age pensioners are living in Esquimalt in squalid, unsanitary conditions, municipal council was told last night.

The elderly men, crowded together in two frame buildings at 523 Admirals Road, have the use of only one outside toilet. Esquimalt engineer, John Graeme said in a letter to council.

AGAINST OWNER

Any investigation into the situation "should be brought against the owners, not the men who live on the property," said Coun. Bert Nelson.

There are 12 cubicles contained within the two buildings. They are without bathing facilities.

The chimneys are on brackets. The buildings have no concrete foundations. "The general condition of the premises is very poor," said the municipal engineer who suggested council inspect the property "with a view of ther to condemnation or selling at a time in the future (when) the premises must be vacated."

MUTABLE QUARTERS

"These men certainly should be moved into suitable quarters which, in this day and age, they are entitled to," said Coun. J. K. Sammon.

It was left in the hands of Reeve A. C. Wurtele to arrange a suitable time for a council inspection of the premises at a time when the owner would be present.

Burglar Alarm Chases Thieves

A burglar alarm frightened off thieves who used a sledge hammer and an axe to smash their way into the Kelly Douglas warehouse at 2141 Government over the weekend.

Nothing was taken by the thieves, who left behind a flashlight and the tools used to break through the wall.

Enlargement of the present facilities, which have proved popular with boatmen from both B.C. and the Pacific Northwest, was hailed last night by tourist and power squadron spokesmen.

Vic Downard, new chairman of the Chamber of Commerce tourist group, said: "This is terrific. We need more of these marine parks to cope with the growing numbers of pleasure boat owners. Mr. Westwood and his department are to be commended."

"Absolutely wonderful," said J. Courtney Haddock, past district commander of Canadian Power

Mr. Haddock added: "More and more people are cruising these days, and it sometimes seems there are fewer places like this where they can find mooring, camping and picnic facilities. The addition will be most welcome."

PERSONAL MENTION

The lovely gardens of Major-General C. R. Stein, 3375 Upper Terrace, was the setting for the Royal Commonwealth Society's garden party in honor of His Excellency, J. Stanhope Reid, High Commissioner for New Zealand. Highlight of the Saturday afternoon reception was an interesting address by His Excellency on present day Commonwealth problems and some of the aspects of Britain's entry into the European Common Market. Mrs. James George, Mr. Theodore Cressy, and Major-General Stein were in the receiving line. Among the guests were Lady Drayton, Countess De la Field, Mrs. Margaret Harvey, Mrs. Monica Porter, Captain and Mrs. T. B. Hewitt, Major and Mrs. Robert Port, Mr. and Mrs. John Loader, Captain J. O'C. Ross, Commanding Officer of HMNZS Royalist and four of his officers, Cmdr. Bland, Lt. Cmdr. Riddell, Lieut. Tempero and Lieut. Abernethy.

She visited her sister and other relatives in Scotland and a brother in East Ham just outside of London, England. At Garden Party

Guests Arrive In Wheel Chairs

More than 200 members of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society attended the annual garden party held Saturday afternoon in the grounds at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lloyd Morgan, 729 Pemberton Road. Postponed from the previous Saturday owing to inclement weather the party was held despite further warnings of wide-spread showers from the weather man. The afternoon proved delightful.

Over 50 patients in wheel chairs were set about the spacious grounds while the program of entertainment was held. The vibrant Briggs dancers, one of whom had just returned from performing with the New York ballet at the Seattle fair, put on a wide variety of ballet dancing on the soft, green turf. Jerry Ingalls and his band played throughout the afternoon. Mayor Thomas Harris, impersonated by Ed McFayden, paid a visit and brought greetings from the Centennial Committee. He told something of the character of the first mayor of Victoria and shook hands and spoke to everyone present.

For the Fair

Lieutenant-Governor Goes to Mayne Island

By DOBOTHY WROTONSKI

Traffic leading to the Mayne Island Fair on Saturday was pretty brisk. People came from neighboring islands both by ferry and private boat. Summer visitors and the year round residents all gathered for the annual summer event.

The fair was an outstanding success with 635 entries in all sections. The greatest drawing card of all this year was the attendance of His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, George R. Pearkes. His Honor, attended by Inspector P. Bazowski, RCMP, travelled by RCMP boat from Swartz Bay and landed at Miner's Bay wharf. Accompanied by three scarlet coated Mounties, His Honor entered the hall and at 1:30 p.m. declared the affair opened.

FUTURE TOLD

After a short address he moved down and had a good look at the exhibits. Before presenting the coveted prizes later in the afternoon he had tea and much to the delight of everyone had his tea cup read by Gwen Hayball who is a regular weekend visitor from Vancouver.

There were those who overheard the reader telling the Lieutenant-Governor his next venture would have something to do with animals. Judging by His Honor's hearty laughter he was highly amused by "his future." And Inspector Bazowski told me he had his cup read and was glad to hear that "his future was assured."

LOT OF FUN

It was a lot of fun, or at least everyone seemed to be enjoying the event. Specially the children as they competed in the midway games.

Later in the afternoon, the judges, Allen Little, fruits, vegetable, flowers and livestock, Dave Anderson, arts and crafts; Mrs. J. Dunn, sewing, knitting and fancy work and myself, home cooking, were invited among others to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Morson, both hard workers for the fair.

Talking over the day's events someone brought up the fact that it was a pity Mr. Ron Worley hadn't been able to make it. Mr. Worley, assistant manager of the B.C. Government Ferry Service, had been invited and had replied that he would do his best to attend.

Just as the conversation was about to move to another subject, a dry wit remarked quietly that "after all Mr. Worley was a pretty busy man and he probably couldn't spend all that time on the ferry."

And that brought the biggest round of applause during the day. There isn't a more controversial subject on the islands than the ferries. Leaving the Morsons we went down to Springwater Lodge where Al and Joan Drummond served a delicious buffet. Fred Dods, president of the Mayne Island Horticultural Society and the hard working secretary, W. W. Hunt-Sowery were still doing the honors before the visitors made ready to leave.

Sausage Salad and Sausage Pizza Pastry.

Sausage in New Role

Here's a new way to serve these old favorites. The Super Sausage Salad is just the main dish for a Sunday evening or for a summer day when you just don't have time to cook but still want a hearty meal.

To serve eight, just boil one quart of potatoes, mix them with 2 cups of cooked peas, dice one cup of celery, and place them all together over a bed of greens. Then add 2 cups of slices or chunks of your favorite smoke sausages, and garnish with sliced cucumber, hard boiled eggs cut length-wise into quarters, and sliced or shredded pickled beets.

Our second sausage treat, the Sausage Pizza Pastries, goes exceptionally well with soup on a cold day, or with a salad when it's warm.

Prepare 1 lb. sausage; 2 6-oz. cans of tomato paste; 1 1/2 cup water; 1/2 teaspoon oregano; 1 recipe pastry mix.

Chop the sausage fine, mix it well with the tomato paste, water, and oregano, and cook it slowly for about half an hour. Roll your pastry very thin, cut into 3-inch squares, and place small amounts of the sausage mix in the centres of the squares. To make little pouches, pull the four corners into the centre and pinch closed. For triangles, fold one side over diagonally. Bake at 400°F for 10 minutes or until golden brown.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Just a word to that old goat who said he had outgrown his wife, and compared her with a pair of shoes:

Old goasers don't outgrow shoes — they wear them out. And that's probably what happened to his wife.

My husband and I married young and started with nothing. I worked alongside him for 20 years. In addition to keeping a home and raising the children I matched him hour for hour in the business. As I look back I don't know how I did it all. After our children were raised and we didn't have to worry about money, he began to fancy himself a ladies' man. He fell for a girl young enough to be his daughter. I told him if he wanted to make a fool of himself to go ahead.

Within three months he was back. The new shoes almost crippled him. He begged me to forgive him, and I did. Now he is behaving himself and I'm sure he's happy to have his comfortable shoes back — NUFF SAID.

Dear Nuff: A low bow to you for having the maturity and courage to sweat out your husband's second childhood. Most women would have given this heel the boot.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a boy 16 and never liked a girl until I met Mary. She came from another school last year and I fell for her right away. Lots of other guys fell for her, too. She is very popular.

I was afraid to ask her out because I didn't want to get turned down. A few weeks ago I was invited to a picnic and a hayride and was told to bring a date. I got up the nerve and asked Mary to go with me. When she said yes I was on top of the world. I wanted to make our first date a great one so I decided to surprise her with a gift. I bought a very nice bracelet and had her initials engraved on it.

Yesterday she called to say she changed her mind because she didn't think she liked me well enough to spend a whole afternoon and evening with me. I was very disappointed.

Should I give her the bracelet anyway? It has her initials on it and I don't have any use for it now.—B.

Dear B: Don't give her the bracelet. Keep it as a reminder—in case you're tempted to go overboard for another doll.

A gift on a first date makes no sense. It would have appeared that you were trying to buy the girl's affections. So, in a way you're lucky she broke the date. It saved you from making a foolish blunder.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm no kid (26) and always thought I knew the answers. Now I'm stumped and my head is breaking from all the advice that is being poured on from relatives.

I was in love with a beautiful girl before I went into the service. She wanted to get married before I left but I decided against it. She wrote wonderful letters (about five a week) and I used to cross out the days on the calendar until we would be together again.

After 14 months I came home. My girl was waiting for me at the bus depot with my folks. I was stunned when I saw how much she had changed. She seemed heavier and older. That night she told me she had a baby just five weeks before I got home. The baby lived only two days.

It turns out my family and friends know all about it and decided not to tell me till I got home. My folks said this girl had always been a tramp and everyone knew it but me. She claimed she missed me so much she had to go out to keep from going crazy. I think I still love her, but I'm not sure. She wants to get married right away. What do you think?—BLASTED.

Dear Blast: I think you'd better hold the phone, Buddy Boy. Date other (and this girl, too, if you like) but forget about marriage for at least six months. You need time to get your bearings. The odds against a successful marriage with this girl are pretty heavy. She was unapologetically deceitful and you'd probably find it difficult to trust her again.

Dear Mrs. P: Is there any way to remove scratches from mahogany arborite table tops?

Mrs. D.O.

Dear Mrs. O: Hope this information isn't too late but newspaper columns must be written several weeks in advance of publication, and as you didn't enclose your address I couldn't forward the information by mail. Scratch marks would have to be removed in the same manner as if the table were wood. Scratch removers are available at the stores, or a good home remedy is simply to paint the scratches with iodine. For mahogany use new iodine; for mahogany that has turned brown or is cherry colored, use iodine that has aged to a dark brown; for maple, dilute iodine with denatured alcohol using a 50/50 mixture. Then give the table a good polishing and you'll find the appearance greatly improved.

Pook Takes After Dad

There's no doubt about this little fella at Mattick's farm being a mule. Pook, shown with Kobe Floor, 16, was born Friday, July 13. Mother is Spook, a Shetland pony and Dad is Pedro, a Mexican burro—that is, donkey. Another recent attempt in Greater Victoria to breed a mule from a pony mother produced something which looked like just another pony.—(Colonist photo.)

Brush Fire Doused

Saanich firemen took more than an hour to quell a blaze that blackened two acres of brush on Mount Tolmie yesterday.

Two trucks were needed to beat out the brush fire which broke out on the south side of the mountain at 3:15 p.m.

After five weeks of delay, members of Esquimalt's five-man recreation commission were appointed by municipal council last night.

Council voted to appoint local sportsman Stan Jackson to the commission after two names had been submitted by the parks and playground committee for consideration.

School board member of the commission is G. T. Horne while the three other members are councillors Art Fields, Bert Nelson and Walter Lock.

RETAIN BONDS

Council decided to retain the municipality's $30,000 worth of PGE parity bonds which were redeemable this year.

Council also gave the nod to purchase of further PGE bonds which will mature in 1966.

Historic Trip Topic

Judge J. B. Clearhues will report on a recent trip to historic Barkerville in the Cariboo, at a meeting of the Victoria Lions Club at noon Friday in the Empress Hotel.

$15 Gold Subsidy Urged

BARKERVILLE, B.C. (CP)

Premier Bennett Monday suggested a strong federal subsidy for gold production and establishment of a Canadian Fort Knox to strengthen the economy.

In a speech at this central British Columbia gold rush community and in interviews later, he said the federal mint should purchase newly mined gold at $50 an ounce, $15 more than the world price set by the United States.

He said the gold would be held in the mint, as the U.S. government holds its gold in Fort Knox, to stabilize Canada's world trade, help its economy and pay off international deficits if there is pressure on the dollar.

Gold in the mint would strengthen Canada's position in the world, he said. On a per capita basis Canada was the largest trading country in the world. It needed more gold than the United States.

Mr. Bennett said in a speech opening Barkerville Park, a collection of restored buildings from the 1862 Cariboo Gold Rush, the policies of one nation should not guide those of another.

The B.C. government decided here to let hospital improvement districts raise their own money for hospital construction.

Hospital improvement districts are formed in unorganized areas. When a new hospital or a hospital addition is required the government pays 50 per cent of the cost, the federal government 12 per cent and the district raises the rest.

In the past the government, after hospital plans had been approved, has advanced the improvement area's share of the money.

The cabinet has decided that the districts now should raise their own money through their own bond issue, apparently hoping that the districts will raise the money, or at least some of the money, through sale of bonds to local residents and lower interest rates.

British Columbia will likely have a second by-election before the next session of the legislature in January, Premier Bennett hinted in Queen's Park Monday.

The people of Vancouver Point Grey will be fully represented at the next session, he said, indicating a by-election to fill the vacancy created by the death Sunday of Mrs. Bessie Brown, minister without portfolio.

'Holdup' Hastens Bennett Arrival

BARKERVILLE (CP)

Premier Bennett and his RCMP escort car barreled through this northern British Columbia community, red light flashing, speed limits ignored.

Redcoated constables dumped the premier at his destination 80 miles away and hurried off to answer, they said, a "holdup call."

Well, not exactly a holdup call. More of a "mixup," as they explained Monday.

It started when a bus driver, about to leave here for Prince

George 80 miles away, couldn't get rid of a drunk.

He telephoned police, but the line was busy.

"Is this an emergency?" asked the operator.

"No," replied the driver, "but I'm being held up."

The operator cut him off at this point, and put out an emergency call on police lines.

The RCMP car was the only one available.

Fulfilling duty and forswearing ceremony, the escort took the call.

The drunk spent the night in jail.

Cabinet Crisis Widens

(P from AP-Reuters)

BUENOS AIRES—The shaky government of Argentine President Jose Maria Guido, buffeted by army chiefs and an inflation-ridden economy, faced a cabinet crisis Monday night.

Two ministers submitted their resignations and others were reported ready to follow.

UNDER FIRE

Interior Minister Carlos A. Adrogue, under fire from Argentina's 60 political parties for his part in a recent decree forbidding supporters of former dictator Juan Peron, Communists and other extremists to run for office, twice put in his resignation.

Guido twice refused to accept it.

NOT DECIDED

Shortly afterward, Defence Minister Jose Luis Castillo, criticized for his handling of the army crisis, offered his resignation for the second time in three days.

Guido said he had not decided whether to accept it.

Adams Run 'Terrible' Brings Ban

VANCOUVER (CP)—An fishing in the Fraser River and approaches has been banned this week following reports of a poor sockeye salmon run on the Adams River northeast of Kamloops.

Lloyd Royal, director of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, said Monday catches so far have been "terrible."

Mr. Royal had year warned that biological studies indicated the Adams River run would fall to return in volume. A low rate of ocean survival made it doubtful that enough fish would return for spawning purposes.

Spacemen Landing Today?

(P from AP-Reuters)

MOSCOW—Russia's space twins went to sleep in orbit Monday night after one of them had logged more than 1,000,000 miles.

There were indications that one or both might land today.

A Soviet source told The Associated Press something interesting would happen Tuesday afternoon but refused to elaborate. However, at about that time both astronauts might be in position over the Soviet Union for a landing.

IN 40 ORBITS

The Soviet news agency Tass said Maj. Andrian Nikolayev, launched in his spaceship Vostok III Saturday, had flown 1,030,000 miles in 40 orbits by 10 p.m. Moscow time.

By the same time, Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich, launched in Vostok IV Sunday, had hauled 825,000 miles in 24 orbits.

Both had far outstripped the best previous Soviet space effort and had covered distances beyond that to the moon—which ranges from 221,463 to 252,710 miles.

TRIED TO COME?

There was still no word on whether a third spaceman would join them as they swung around the globe in continuing radio contact with each other and earth.

Moscow had buzzed with rumors that a third shot was planned for Monday. According to Reuters news agency, an unofficial but reliable Moscow source said the Nikolayev and Popovich shots were part of a five-shot series planned. But officials refused to confirm or deny the report.

NO DISCOMFORT

Neither cosmonaut has reported any discomfort from the peculiar condition of weightlessness encountered on all space flights. Maj. Gherman Titov, whose 17-orbit flight a year ago has now been exceeded, complained at times of a sort of sea-sickness during weightlessness.

Television pictures from the interior of their space ships were relayed from time to time to the Soviet TV network. Both lay back in their seats. Occasionally they would rise to a half-sitting position to work better on their log books. But they made only limited movements.

RISES FROM SEAT

Tass said Popovich rose from his seat, looked through the porthole, smiled, drank something and then sat back down. Western TV watchers said he did not appear to leave his seat but leaned forward and looked through the porthole.

Along with millions of Russians, Premier Khrushchev followed the news of their progress closely in his Black Sea vacation retreat. Tass said he frequently telephoned the control centre in the interior asking for news and information on the astronauts' physical condition. After getting one report, Khrushchev messaged:

"EMBRACE HIM"

"I again congratulate you and embrace you. I wish you successful fulfilment on the program of the flight, and happy landing."

"I'll spare no effort to fulfil the set task," said Popovich, "and to be healthy and unharmed."

That was now the major aim of the enterprise.

Orbiting Cosmonauts Eat 'Food for Gods'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and fellow cosmonaut Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich ended another day in orbit with a banquet described as "food for the gods."

The menu included omelets, roast veal, chicken fillets, pie and sandwiches with different stuffings and spreads catering to their personal tastes.

The cosmonauts also ate fruit, drank coffee, water and fruit juices.

And they also snatched on special food in tubes similar to those used by U.S. astronauts on their orbital flights.

Special dishes for the astronauts are prepared in small pieces, to be tossed into the mouth whole.

Both to Land In One Ship?

MANCHESTER, England

(Reuters)—Leading British astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell said Monday he would not be surprised if the two Russian cosmonauts now circling the earth came down in one craft and left the other one in orbit.

"The whole episode has been so spectacular that either the spacemen are both together or are extremely close to each other," he said.

CP Income Cut Sharply

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian Pacific Railway Company reported Monday net income in the first half of 1962 dropped to $8,371,288 from $11,995,968 in the first six months of 1961.

Black Watch Faces Red Bomber Goes Scot-Free

STIRLING, Scotland (Reuters)—Faces were red Monday in The Black Watch, the crack Scottish regiment.

Someone from a rival army unit threw a false bomb into their headquarters at Stirling castle here — and escaped scot-free.

Army cook Johnny Hardcastle, 34, was given the task

as a test of "initiative" by a unit of the Royal Engineers based in Marchwood, South-east England.

Dressed as a tourist, Hardcastle hitch-hiked to the castle. Speaking with a foreign accent, he asked the guard about a man the newspapers said intended to put a bomb in the castle.

Hardcastle added: "The guard answered me in a broad Scots accent: 'He may get in, but he'll no get out.'"

The cook then got into the castle and "I chucked the bomb with a little note through the window of the commanding officer's office. Then I walked out . . ."

He left undetected.

Berliners Besiege Red Wall

BERLIN (Reuters)—Thousands of West Berliners defied pleas to stay away from the Berlin border wall Monday night to demonstrate on the first anniversary of the Communist-built barrier.

Two tear gas battles erupted between East and West German police and angry West Berlin crowds attacked three Soviet vehicles with stones and beer bottles.

AT CROSSING POINTS

Most of the demonstrations centred around the Bernauerstrasse and Friedrichstrasse border crossing points.

Truncheon-wielding West German police finally resorted to using tear gas on West German demonstrators who would not disperse near Bernauerstrasse.

At one point, an estimated 4,000 demonstrators shouted hostile slogans at East Berlin guards at checkpoint Charlie, the Friedrichstrasse point.

VEHICLES STONED

Angry crowds stoned a Soviet bus carrying soldiers to the Soviet War Memorial in the British sector and two limousines carrying Soviet officers. Two unidentified explosions from East Berlin were heard at checkpoint Charlie.

West Berlin police earlier had prevented a column of about 1,000 marchers from joining with a similar number at the Bernauerstrasse point.

New Guinea Truce Set

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Indonesia and The Netherlands agreed Monday night on a cease-fire in West New Guinea, effective Wednesday when they sign a formal agreement that shifts the disputed territory from Dutch to United Nations and then to Indonesian administration.

Tories Thin Grouse

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan went grouse-shooting on the Yorkshire moors Monday as one of a party of seven guns which bagged 196 birds.

But Foreign Secretary Lord Home did better. His party of six guns, on the Home estate in Scotland, bagged a total of 260.

Both the prime minister and Home were among hundreds of shooting enthusiasts out on the moors Monday, the first day of the British grouse season, known as "the glorious twelfth."

The twelfth was one day late this year, because the traditional opening day fell on a Sunday, when shooting is frowned upon.

35-Hour Work Week Target of U.S. Labor

CHICAGO (AP)—U.S. labor

made the 35-hour work week without a reduction in take-home pay, its big gun Monday in a drive against unemployment.

The executive council of the AFL-CIO endorsed a double-barrelled attack, in Congress and at the bargaining table, to win full employment.

It tossed aside the pleas of President Kennedy and his business and labor aides who have said that the United States cannot stand a cut in effort or a sharp boost in labor costs in its competition with the Communist world.

President George Meany revealed that the principal wedge to spread employment will be a drive to incorporate double-time pay for hours worked in excess of 35 a week, a radical shift from the present standard of time-and-a-half for more than 40 hours' work.

Great Precision of Space Shots Step to Moon

WASHINGTON (AP)—The apparently great accuracy of Russia's two manned space shots last weekend indicates the Soviet Union has cleared a major hurdle on the route to a rendezvous — in a space technique which could be used in flight to the moon.

This was the appraisal of American space scientists Monday in the wake of Russia's feat of launching two separate capsules—about a day apart—and having them wind up close enough together that the two cosmonauts, according to the Russians, can see each other's spaceship.

"I think that they have done most of the hard things toward accomplishing an actual rendezvous in space (at some future time)," a space agency expert said a reporter.

"Getting two capsules up in a couple of days in such a way that the two vehicles are reported in sight of one another is about the biggest part of any plan to have a couple of vehicles 'rendezvous,' or connect up with each other in space.

"For one thing, the timing of the launching of the second vehicle has to be very precise—and accomplished within a very limited time—because if the second vehicle were launched at the wrong time, the two vehicles could be in orbit on opposite sides of the earth from one another."

He indicated, too, that the guidance of the two vehicles, to get them in orbits relatively close to one another, must also have been masterly.

Though launched about a day apart, the two space capsules are orbiting the earth in such a way that the difference in timing for a complete orbit of the planet is only one second. That is, one of the capsules takes 88 minutes and four seconds to whirl around the earth; the other requires only 88 minutes and three seconds.

The latter requires a shorter time because its orbit is "tighter" with respect to the earth—that is, somewhat closer. Moreover, while each of the capsules is travelling at a speed in excess of 17,000 miles an hour — the speed required to overcome the earth's gravitational pull—the capsule orbiting closer to the earth would have needed a somewhat higher speed than its sibling when thrust into orbit. This is because of the stronger pull of the earth's gravity for a vehicle closer to the earth.

How would connecting two separate vehicles in space be accomplished?

In effect, it would be roughly analogous to a jet fighter travelling at 500 miles an hour manoeuvring close to a big tanker plane for refuelling, though with considerably greater manoeuvring.

Say the spacecraft orbiting closest to the earth wants to hook up with the one orbiting farther out.

The cosmonaut aboard the closer-in or No. 1 craft fires a rocket in such a way that his craft is pushed away from the earth and toward the orbit of the sister craft, No. 2.

When the orbital path of the latter is reached, the pilot of the No. 1 craft fires a second rocket—with the direction of thrust so arranged that the No. 1 craft heads in the same direction as the other craft. If this second rocket were not fired, the No. 1 craft would soar away in an entirely different direction.

Now, the two craft would be travelling at the same altitude, in the same general direction, and in the same type of orbit.

However, they might not be in the same plane—that is, one orbit might be tipped at a greater angle than the other.

To overcome this, cosmonauts in either craft—or both—could fire additional rockets to bring the two craft together.

Circus Star Wonders:

How Do Mounties Get So Good So Fast?

Park Powerless

Circus Elephant Turns Out Lights

The circus elephant turned out the lights—but good—at Royal Athletic Park Sunday. When enterers from Lough's Banquet Room arrived at the park Sunday morning to begin heating coffee urns for the centennial pageant party there that afternoon, they found there was no electricity.

And members of the circus, quartered at the park, simultaneously found they weren't getting any juice in their living quarters. It seems the park's main electric switch is located away up a pole, and two ropes hang down whereby the switch can be turned on and off. The circus elephant, in his explorations, had found the ropes, turned the switch off, and then pulled on both ropes until they broke near the top.

A hydro linesman was called and turned the power on again.

Queen Omission Sad Oversight

The Queen was not included in the festivities at Royal Athletic Park Saturday "because of one of those unfortunate oversights," Aik. Michael Griffin said yesterday.

A citizen complained to the Colonist that "somebody made a bad mistake."

Aik. Griffin said it was "one of those which happen in the best of families."

Oak Bay Tribute

Plaque Honors Park Creator

A bronze plaque paying tribute to a 94-year-old man who spent years developing a park in Oak Bay will be unveiled by municipal officials at 2 p.m. today.

The plaque is a testimonial to the efforts of Thomas I. Lokier, 2455 Hamlet, instrumental in making Lokier Garden a place of beauty.

The garden is situated on municipally-owned property at the corner of Hamlet, Esplanade, Musgrave and Thompson. It is noted for its lawns, shrubs, flowers and roses, many of which were planted and cared for by the elderly man.

Mr. Lokier attracted publicity nearly a dozen years ago when at the age of 83 he designed some gates and built cement pillars for the corner lot which he had turned into a garden.

A veteran performer of the Brahma bull and bronc stomping circuit yesterday paid enthusiastic tribute to the mounted men of the RCMP musical ride as "the greatest collection of horsemen it has been my privilege to watch."

And the thing that mystified circus horseman Don Ricardo (real name: Dale Madden of Wichita, Kansas) is the fact few, if any, of the redcoats in the famed group ever threw a leg over the saddle before they enlisted with the corps.

SO GOOD SO FAST
"I started in this line when I was seven days old—my father, grandfather and great-grandfather have run a circus featuring riding acts in the midwest—and it amazes me that these fellows can get so good so fast," said the rodeo star.

ONE OF HIGHLIGHTS
Veteran Carson and Barnes circus hands stayed on at Royal Athletic Park Saturday night to watch the first show of the musical ride, said Don Ricardo. The RCMP group and the circus are appearing nightly this week at Royal Athletic Park in a program billed as one of the highlights of the city's centennial celebrations.

'GOOD CRITICS'
"Show people are good critics, they know the problems facing any performer," he added. The consensus among the circus troupe was the redcoats would be a tough act to follow.

The musical ride, said Don Ricardo, differs in many ways from the high school dressage and galloped horse act performed by the Kansas rider, who was two palomino stallions in his performance.

And not the least difference is the type of saddle.

$4,000 SADDLE
Don Ricardo swings aboard a 100-pound, silver-laced western saddle which is insured at $4,000, while the Mounties use a 20-pound English officer's saddle.

The 31-year-old circus performer says he has used English saddles in various exhibitions and riding competitions, but his preference is, naturally, the western rig.

NOT SO SURE
Not so sure is young Constable Dave Owen of Edmonton, one of the musical ride team.

While Dave admits that saddle soap and elbow grease spell the difference between a life of buffet dinners and an easy chair, he still prefers the lighter model.

CAN'T BE BEAT
The western saddle is designed for roping cattle and range work... once you saddle-soap the stiffness out of the English saddle, it can't be beat," he said, scrubbing furiously at a cinch strap.

Conflict over a work contract sparked a rebellion in Victoria Teachers Union Local 885 that has resulted in about 35 members voting themselves out of the union.

The labor relations board granted cancellation of union certification after a hearing and an employee vote.

Affected are teachers, helpers and warehousemen at Millwright Van and Storage and Sincere's Security Storage and Warehouse.

Parking Ban On Douglas Still Overdue

Parking ban for Douglas Street north of the roundabout is 1½ months overdue and civic officials yesterday seemed reluctant to press for quick action on the matter.

Victoria and Saanich both agreed to the ban which was supposed to have created room for six lanes of traffic by July 1, 1962, on that portion of Douglas Street.

Agreement to a traffic ban was one of the major conditions upon which the Capital Improvement District Commission was willing to allocate $175,000 in beautifying the approach to B.C.'s capital city.

WONDER WHY
But as of yesterday, CIDC chairman J. Everett Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs, was still wondering why nothing had happened. Asked whether he thinks

Drive-In Delays Plaza Plan

There were indications yesterday Saanich council has no intention of allowing construction of a drive-in ice cream building near the Tillamook-Burnside garden apartment development—even if it means blocking plans for a whole shopping plaza.

Council met for five minutes to grant a 90-day extension to a previous 30-day order prohibiting the issuance of a building permit for the proposed plaza.

HEARING FIRST
The meeting was called in a move to delay start of construction until after a public hearing can be held, said a municipal official.

Reeve Stanley Murphy said council has no objection to proposed plans for a plaza on a narrow strip of land between the garden apartments and a supermarket—it's the ice cream place they object to.

At a recent council meeting, municipal planner Tony Parr recommended that council delay its approval of plans because a drive-in ice cream business so close to an apartment development would not be suitable use of the land.

"I think they (city and Saanich) intend to go through with it but if it goes on for any length of time it should be brought before the CIDC for formal discussion."

MUST STAND UP
Reeve Stanley Murphy later confirmed to the Colonist that Saanich is compelled to stand up to its commitment with the CIDC.

However, in the interest of passing a parking prohibition bylaw which will be uniform with controls over the city portion of the street, Saanich will wait for city council to take action, said the Reeve.

SOME TIME AGO
Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell agreed the city was supposed to have had its parking ban bylaw in effect some time ago.

"The mayor has asked the engineer for a report on the beautification work which has not yet been completed. I think that's why it's being held up for the time being."

Several Schools Excepted

A "short duration" was predicted yesterday for most of the shift classes which begin operation in Greater Victoria elementary schools next month.

Exceptions are cited, however, in the case of two schools, Macaulay and McKenzie Avenue, where major classroom additions are just now getting under way.

RETURN IN WEEKS
District school superintendent John Gough said yesterday in the case of other schools where shifts will start early in September normal classroom operations should return in a matter of weeks.

Some classroom additions are expected to be ready by the end of September and others by late October.

REMAIN IN FORCE
At Macaulay, however, where eight additional classrooms and an enlarged activity room are being built, shift classes are expected to remain in force for "the best part" of the coming school year.

Cause of the lengthy delay, said school officials, has been the difficulty of obtaining firm footing for foundations in blue clay subsoil on the building site.

DOUBLE THE SIZE
At McKenzie Avenue, where the planned addition will almost double the size of the present school, new classrooms should be ready for occupancy early in the new year.

School District 61 is expected to have an increase in total enrolment between 850 and 900 when school re-opens Sept. 4. It will boost the district total to nearly 24,500.

MORE TEACHERS
Thirty additional teachers have been hired to fill the extra classrooms which are being built under the first phase of the $3,755,000 three-year-building program approved by ratepayers last October.

No decision has been made by the school board to date on schools at which other shift classes will be instituted or the times of morning and afternoon shifts.

REPORT TO BOARD
Officials will make an on-the-spot assessment of building projects shortly and report to the board at its next meeting.

Meanwhile, despite removal of roughly one-third of the district's Grade 7 classes from junior high schools, officials said, there will be no space going begging in secondary schools this fall.

Mr. Gough said "no serious problems" are expected to crop up at the high school level, but added all available space would be used to full advantage.

STAGE FOR CLASS
At Mt. Douglas High School the auditorium stage will be pressed into classroom use.

"Every available foot of teaching space" will be occupied at Oak Bay High School and Mount View High School will be hard-pressed, officials said.

There will be a "slight easing" of the perennial growing pains experienced at Victoria High School.

NANAIMO—Frank Noy of the Nanaimo Realty Co. reported to police theft of the licence plates from his car over the weekend.

Marauding Dogs Kill Young Heifer

DUNCAN — A pack of marauding dogs attacked and killed a registered 17-month-old Ayrshire heifer at the Fairbridge farm and left nothing but the bones, said farm-owner Archie Stevenson.

It was the first time in his experience that savage dogs had attacked and killed livestock bigger than sheep. At one time he saw as many as 10 dogs in one pack circling some grazing horses.

ONLY SOLUTION
"It is unbelievable that dog owners show so little consideration. If they let their animals run loose, the only solution is to shoot the dogs."

Most of these killings, he noted, happen during night hours. Another victim of marauding dogs was a lamb belonging to Mrs. D. J. Aitken of Sherman Road.

Deadline For Tax Thursday

Saanich homeowners have until 5 p.m. Thursday to avoid paying a penalty on their 1962 taxes. Payment is made at the municipal hall.

Two per cent interest will be levied after that date until Sept. 15 when the penalty jumps to four per cent, said comptroller John Tribe.

Saanich has between 15,000 and 18,000 ratepayers. It was not known yesterday what percentage of them have already paid their taxes.

Burglar Alarm Chases Thieves

A burglar alarm frightened off thieves who used a sledge hammer and an axe to smash their way into the Kelly Douglas warehouse at 2141 Government over the weekend.

Nothing was taken by the thieves, who left behind a flashlight and the tools used to break through the wall.

Sidney Spit Gains 180 Acres for Park

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood yesterday announced addition of 180 acres of foreshore reserve to Sidney Spit marine park. He said the addition—which brings total land and foreshore area of the park up to 717 acres—will permit "extensive expansion" of mooring facilities for pleasure craft.

Sidney Spit marine park, one of five completed parks serving boaters in B.C. waters, is situated on the northern tip of Sidney Island, about three miles east of the village of Sidney.

Enlargement of the present facilities, which have proved popular with boaters from both B.C. and the Pacific Northwest, was hailed last night by tourist and power squadron spokesmen.

Vic Downard, new chairman of the Chamber of Commerce tourist group, said: "This is terrific. We need more of these marine parks to cope with the growing numbers of pleasure boat owners. Mr. Westwood and his department are to be commended."

"Absolutely wonderful," said J. Courtney Haddock, past district commander of Canadian Power

Squadrons on Vancouver Island. "I have visited the park many times, and it can only be described as a paradise for boat owners."

Mr. Haddock added: "More and more people are cruising these days, and it sometimes seems there are fewer places like this where they can find mooring, camping and picnic facilities. The addition will be most welcome."

Paradise for Boat Owners

All five occupants of the boat, the Beverly Jones, escaped in a dinghy.

Icy Plunge Blamed In Death

LADYSMITH — A 66-year-old fisherman, 60-year-old Fred Smith, died of a heart attack over the weekend after he had been pulled from the water at the Ladysmith fisherman's wharf.

Returning to his boat, Mr. Smith slipped and fell into the water.

He clung to a rope for two hours.

American tourists came to his search and pulled him aboard his boat after he declined to go to the Ladysmith hospital.

Several hours later he was found dead in his vessel.

An attending physician said the struggle in the water had precipitated the heart attack.

NANAIMO — Reconstruction of Stewart Avenue has reached the blacktopping stage. Traffic had to be rerouted over the Wall Street bridge on the weekend.

He introduced the two members who are delegates to the national 4-H week in Toronto in November. They are Doris Benson and Frank Allison.

Mr. Jameson announced this was one of his last tasks as district agriculturalist and introduced John Zacharias, district agriculturalist of northern Vancouver Island, who will take over in the near future.

Fish Plant Buying Streamlined

UCLUELET — A modern fish-buying operation has been started at Spring Cove, near Ucluelet on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

B.C. Packers Limited has built a buying plant at Spring Cove that enables six boats to unload simultaneously at a floating concrete dock.

EASY UNLOADING

The 110-foot long dock is partially filled with water to allow fishboats gunwale-level unloading. From grading stations, the fish are dumped into aluminum buggies—which can hold up to 800 pounds—and winched into an ice house.

Robert Gordon, manager of the buying plant, says the new operation provides far more efficient buying than previous stations.

It's Long Time Between Rides

A Victoria barber has a special reason for going to see the RCMP musical ride at Royal Athletic Park this week. He hasn't seen it since 1919, when the famous show was performed in Vladivostok as part of the Russian May Day celebrations.

Bill Ingden, then 19, and now a barber at the Dominion Hotel, was a member of the Canadian Expeditionary Force taking part in the Siberian campaign.

"We were stationed there as part of the Allied force," which included French, British, U.S., Japanese and Slav troops," he said. "They all took part in the May Day celebrations."

"An RCMP troop serving with us decided to perform the musical ride and trained a few men from the army as possible last-minute replacements."

He said the Russians just loved the show which was performed at the Vladivostok exhibition grounds.

"I'm certainly looking forward to seeing the ride again this week," he said. "I wonder if they've made any changes."

Aged naturally in the traditional manner ... to assure Old Style flavour!

Old Style WATER

It, too, has distinction!

The clear, sparkling water of British Columbia is a brewing ingredient unequalled in Canada. Our original recipe calls distinctly for this pure mountain water. Blended in our brewing kettle with hops and barley, its goodness comes to life. Then, finally, in our ageing cellars the brew slowly matures into the brilliant golden colour and the supreme flavour that is Old Style. Fortunately, this traditional manner of brewing does not go unnoticed - as evidenced by the many people who prefer Old Style.

Cabinet Crisis Widens

CP from AP-Reuters
BUENOS AIRES—The shaky government of Argentine President Jose Maria Guido, buffeted by army chiefs and an inflation-ridden economy, faced a cabinet crisis Monday night.

Two ministers submitted their resignations and others were reported ready to follow.

UNDER FIRE

Interior Minister Carlos A. Adrogue, under fire from Argentina's 60 political parties for his part in a recent decree forbidding supporters of former dictator Juan Peron, Communists and other extremists to run for office, twice put in his resignation.

Guido twice refused to accept it.

NOT DECIDED

Shortly afterward, Defence Minister Jose Luis Cantilo, criticized for his handling of the army crisis, offered his resignation for the second time in three days.

Guido said he had not decided whether to accept it.

Adams Run 'Terrible' Brings Ban

VANCOUVER (CP)—An fishing in the Fraser River and approaches has been banned this week following reports of a poor sockeye salmon run on the Adams River northeast of Kamloops.

Lloyd Royal, director of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, said Monday catches so far have been "terrible."

Mr. Royal last year warned that biological studies indicated the Adams River run would fall to return to volume. A low rate of ocean survival made it doubtful that enough fish would return for spawning purposes.

Spacemen Landing Today?

CP from AP-Reuters

MOSCOW — Russia's two newest astronauts woke once again in space early today while their twin ships raced around the earth, constantly setting new mileage and orbital records. Tass news agency reported.

The bulletin reporting the position of the cosmonauts at 8 a.m. Moscow time said they were then over the southern hemisphere, Vostok III in its 47th revolution and Vostok IV in its 31st.

PROGRAM CONTINUES

"Scientific observations in conformity with the planned program are continuing in the ships," it said.

Unconfirmed reports said "the Falcon" or "the Golden Eagle," or both, might land during the day.

A Soviet informant told The Associated Press something interesting would happen in the afternoon (Moscow time is ten hours ahead of Pacific Daylight Time), but he refused to elaborate. About that time, both astronauts might be in position to descend.

"The Falcon," Maj. Andrian Nikolayev, 32, after his 46th orbit at 6 a.m. Moscow time, had flown about 1,190,000 miles since his Vostok III blasted off 69½ hours before, on Saturday morning.

AFTER 48 HOURS

"The Golden Eagle" code name for Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich, 31, after his 38th orbit of the earth had travelled a total of about 776,000 miles since his Vostok IV was launched Sunday, 48 hours before.

Both had far outstripped the best previous Soviet space efforts and had covered distances far beyond those to the moon.

Neither cosmonaut has reported any discomfort from the peculiar condition of weightlessness encountered on all space flights. Maj. Gherman Titov, whose 17-orbit flight a year ago has now been exceeded, complained at times of a sort of sea-sickness during weightlessness.

Television pictures from the interior of their space ships were relayed from time to time to the Soviet TV network. Both lay back in their seats. Occasionally they would rise to a half-sitting position to work better on their log books. But they made only limited movements.

RISKS FROM SEAT

Tass said Popovich rose from his seat, looked through the porthole, smiled, drank something and then sat back down. Western TV watchers said he did not appear to leave his seat but leaned forward and looked through the porthole.

Along with millions of Russians, Premier Khrushchev followed the news of their progress closely in his Black Sea vacation retreat. Tass said he frequently telephoned the control centre in the interior asking for news and information on the astronauts' physical condition. After getting one report, Khrushchev messaged:

'EMBRACE YOU'

"I again congratulate you and embrace you. I wish you successful fulfilment on the program of the flight, and happy landing."

"I'll spare no effort to fulfil the set task," said Popovich. "and to be healthy and unharmed."

Orbiting Cosmonauts Eat 'Food for Gods'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and fellow cosmonaut Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich ended another day in orbit with a banquet described as "food for the gods."

The menu included cutlets, roast veal, chicken fillets, pies and sandwiches with different stuffing and spreads catering to their personal tastes.

The cosmonauts also ate fruit, drank coffee, water and fruit juices.

And they also snacked on special food in tubes similar to those used by U.S. astronauts on their orbital flights.

Special dishes for the astronauts are prepared in small pieces, to be tossed into the mouth whole.

Both to Land In One Ship?

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters)—Leading British astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell said Monday he would not be surprised if the two Russian cosmonauts now circling the earth came down in one craft and left the other one in orbit.

The whole episode has been so spectacular that either the spacemen are both together or are extremely close to each other," he said.

CP Income Cut Sharply

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian Pacific Railway Company reported Monday net income in the first half of 1962 dropped to $5,211,288 from $11,288,000 in the first six months of 1961.

BERLIN (Reuters)—Thousands of West Berliners defied pleas to stay away from the Berlin border wall Monday night to demonstrate on the first anniversary of the Communist-built barrier.

Two tear gas battles erupted between East and West German police and angry West Berlin crowds attacked three Soviet vehicles with stones and beer bottles.

AT CROSSING POINTS

Most of the demonstrations centred around the Bernauerstrasse and Friedrichstrasse border crossing points.

Truncheon-wielding West German police finally resorted to using tear gas on West German demonstrators who would not disperse near Bernauerstrasse.

At one point, an estimated 4,000 demonstrators shouted hostile slogans at East Berlin guards at checkpoint Charlie, the Friedrichstrasse point.

VEHICLES STONED

Angry crowds stoned a Soviet bus carrying soldiers to the Soviet War Memorial in the British sector and two limousines carrying Soviet officers.

Two unidentified explosions from East Berlin were heard at checkpoint Charlie.

West Berlin police earlier had prevented a column of about 1,000 marchers from joining with a similar number at the Bernauerstrasse point.

New Guinea Truce Set

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Indonesia and The Netherlands agreed Monday night on a cease-fire in West New Guinea, effective Wednesday when they sign a formal agreement that shifts the disputed territory from Dutch to United Nations and then to Indonesian administration.

Tories Thin Grouse

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan went grouse-shooting on the Yorkshire moors Monday as one of a party of seven guns which bagged 196 birds.

But Foreign Secretary Lord Home did better. His party of six guns, on the Home estate in Scotland, bagged a total of 260.

Both the prime minister and Home were among hundreds of shooting enthusiasts out on the moors Monday, the first day of the British grouse season, known as "the glorious twelfth." The twelfth was one day late this year, because the traditional opening date fell on a Sunday, when shooting is frowned upon.

35-Hour Work Week Target of U.S. Labor

CHICAGO (AP)—U.S. labor made the 35-hour work week, without a reduction in take-home pay, its big gun Monday in a drive against unemployment.

The executive council of the AFL-CIO endorsed a double-barrelled attack, in Congress and at the bargaining table, to win full employment.

It tossed aside the pleas of President Kennedy and his business and labor aides who have said that the United States cannot stand a cut in effort or a sharp boost in labor costs in its competition with the Communist world.

President George Meany revealed that the principal wedge to spread employment will be a drive to incorporate double-time pay for hours worked in excess of 35 a week, a radical shift from the present standard of time-and-a-half for more than 40 hours' work.

Great Precision of Space Shots Step to Moon

WASHINGTON (AP)—The apparently great accuracy of Russia's two manned space shots last weekend indicates the Soviet Union has cleared a major hurdle on the route to a rendezvous - in - space technique which could be used in flight to the moon.

This was the appraisal of American space scientists Monday in the wake of Russia's feat of launching two separate capsules—about a day apart—and having them wind up close enough together that the two cosmonauts, according to the Russians, can see each other's spaceship.

"I think that they have done most of the hard things toward accomplishing an actual rendezvous in space (at some future time)," a space agency expert told a reporter.

"Getting two capsules up in a couple of days in such a way that the two vehicles are reported in sight of one another is about the biggest part of any plan to have a couple of vehicles 'rendezvous,' or connect up with each other in space.

"For one thing, the timing of the launching of the second vehicle has to be very precise—and accomplished within a very limited time—because if the second vehicle were launched at the wrong time, the two vehicles could be in orbit on opposite sides of the earth from one another."

He indicated, too, that the guidance of the two vehicles, to get them in orbits relatively close to one another must also have been masterly.

Though launched about a day apart, the two space capsules are orbiting the earth in such a way that the difference in timing for a complete orbit of the planet is only one second. That is, one of the capsules takes 88 minutes and four seconds to whirl around the earth; the other requires only 88 minutes and three seconds.

The latter requires a shorter time because its orbit is "higher" with respect to the earth—that is, somewhat closer. Moreover, while each of the capsules is travelling at a speed in excess of 17,000 miles an hour—the speed required to overcome the earth's gravitational pull—the capsule orbiting closer to the earth would have needed a somewhat higher speed than its side-kick when thrust into orbit. This is because of the stronger pull of the earth's gravity for a vehicle closer to the earth.

How would connecting two separate vehicles in space be accomplished?

In effect, it would be roughly analogous to a jet fighter travelling at 300 miles an hour manoeuvring close to a big lumber plane for refuelling, though with considerably greater manoeuvring.

By the spacecraft orbiting closest to the earth wants to hook up with the one orbiting farther out.

The cosmonaut aboard the capsule or No. 1 craft fires a rocket in such a way that his craft is pushed away from the earth and toward the orbit of the sister craft, No. 2.

When the orbital path of the latter is reached, the pilot of the No. 1 craft fires a second rocket—with the direction of thrust so arranged that the No. 1 craft heads in the same direction as the other craft. If this second rocket were not fired, the No. 1 craft would move away in an entirely different direction.

Now, the two craft would be travelling at the same altitude, in the same general direction, and in the same type of orbit. However, they might not be in the same plane—that is, one orbit might be tipped at a greater angle than the other.

To overcome this, cosmonauts in either craft—or both—could fire additional rockets to bring the two craft together.
